A Papal Flying Field
Russia's Slave Labor
Safe From Volcanoes
Mr. Shaw, He Scorns Us

By Arthur Brisbane

MANY THINGS have been done by the Popes important to human beings everywhere. They have encouraged the arts, and the world owes to them its greatest pictures, statues, buildings. They established Europe's first universities and sent missionaries exploring and civilizing among Indians of our Great Lakes and the Chinese in Asia.

The present Pope now appears as a friend and promoter of aviation, and in a most important direction.

Within the limited Vatican City territory allotted to the papacy, by Mussolini, there is not room for a full-sized aviation field. The Pope, therefore, will encourage development of the helicopter, that rises and lands perpendicularly, and will have a small helicopter airport.

This is important to scientific aviation and will enable the Pope at any time to leave Papal territory for any destination without entering upon territory that may become hostile.

The League of Nations labor bureau gives information about labor conditions in Russia. All jobs are obtained through government agencies. Any workman can quit by giving seven days' notice.

But if he does quit, he is called an industrial "deserter" and for six months after he quits, although he may be a highly skilled man, the government gives him nothing to do but manual labor. Then he is reinstated.

This is Russia's much talked of "slave labor." It certainly is not "free labor," as the western world understands it.

However, Russia considers industrial success a matter of life and death, as western nations consider military success a matter of life and death.

In a military crisis we sent three million men to Europe without asking their permission, and if one deserted the punishment was something worse than a job at manual labor. It was DEATH.

Russia considers industrial triumph as important as military triumph.

Russian labor conditions horrify us because they are new. We take it for granted that a boy of 18, tired, exhausted by a long march and going to sleep on sentry duty should be put to death. It's all a matter of custom.

We should be humbly thankful for a country free from volcanic activities.

It is difficult to imagine the horror of a recent eruption in Java that killed 15 natives at work in the fields. Imagine a stream of red hot lava, 600 feet wide, 70 feet high, rolling down upon you, filling valley, covering villages.

Or imagine the sight that met the eyes of terrified villagers, the volcanic peak covered with a heavy black cloud, intense flashes of lightning shooting through it.

The lava flow changed fertile fields to desert. Do you wonder that nature frightened men in the early days, causing them to invent tormenting devils, and strange gods indifferent to their welfare.

George Bernard Shaw says Americans like to be ridiculed. "I am careful never to say a civil word to them, and they adore me," says he.

Mr. Shaw does not thoroughly understand the American character. If he went to the monkey house in any American zoological garden, he would see back of the bars little creatures with whiskers not unlike his own.

Americans on their side of the bars would be amused by the Simian grimaces and comic gnashing of teeth.

It is difficult for one who goes through life in a perpetual state of narcissus adoration to understand Americans, largely engaged in real work.

What will our best minds say of the latest utterances by Senator Borah? He wants the United States to lend money to Russia to help her industrial development and promote trade with the United States.

Senator Borah says that in Russia "the greatest undeveloped market in the world awaits us, if we are bold enough to seize it."

But, he doesn't expect the government to be bold enough to defy the financial "best minds" that at present control it.

In New York, where this is written, in early editions of afternoon newspapers, you read about these things:

A dead body of a man, taken for a ride, is found in a deserted automobile. No longer news.

A woman, respectable, swears that she was arrested and a magistrate, included in a blackmailing gang, refused to listen

Two Girls Sought in Gas Station Murder

Concord, N. H., Dec. 20—George Wollums, 60, was shot and clubbed to death in a struggle shortly after midnight today in his filling station on the Daniel Webster highway on the outskirts of this city.

High-pitched screams like those of a woman awakened Wollums' son, and two girls and a man were seen nearby by a neighbor. Police of New Hampshire and Vermont are seeking a light sedan with Vermont license plates in which the three were riding.

An automatic pistol of .32 calibre and seven exploded shells were found beside the body. The chest had been pierced by two bullets, while the head was so badly battered that police could not tell whether a shot had entered it.

Nearly $2000 was found in Wollums' hip pocket and $8 in the cash drawer. It is believed the motive was robbery, the slayers being frightened away without getting the money.

TERRIFIC DEATH STRUGGLE.

Facing a revolver, he apparently had given battle with the handle of a gasoline pump. His own gun was found hanging on a hook behind the counter of the small office in which the murder was committed. The furniture was smashed and the whole place bloodstained.

Joseph Wollums, 27, his son, upon hearing the screams, looked out his bedroom window and saw the windows of the office broken and the lights on. He dressed and ran out to find the door locked by the snaplock.

He looked through a window and saw his father's body beside the door. Reaching through the broken pane he opened the door and saw the results of the death struggle. He told police he believed the crime was committed by persons who knew his father and knew he carried a large sum of money.

SAW TRIO IN CAR

A light snow had fallen and automobile tracks showed that a car had arrived at the station from the direction of Manchester, had circled around the pumps and gone away again toward Manchester.

Anthony Scripps, who has a filling station nearby, told Police Capt. Edward Silva he saw a Vermont sedan with a man and two girls parked nearby.

PONZI LOSES IN FIGHT ON MORAL TURPITUDE

Mrs. Tillinghast Says Deportation Warrant Stands Despite His "White Slave" Protest

Charles Ponzi, serving time at state prison for his financial "bubble," which cost the public millions, was informed today by Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast, U. S. immigration commissioner for this port, that his crimes involved moral turpitude, whether he thinks so or not.

She wrote to Ponzi in reply to a letter received from him following the issuance of a deportation warrant by the Department of Labor on the ground that he was guilty of moral turpitude. When Ponzi is released from prison he will be arrested on this deportation warrant and given a hearing. He is not eligible for parole until next October 31.

Charles Ponzi

NO "WHITE SLAVER"

Ponzi wrote to Mrs. Tillinghast:

"Crimes involving moral turpitude are crimes against chastity. Your statement that I have been convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude conveys to the general public the impression that I am a moral degenerate or a white slaver."

Mrs. Tillinghast replies by citing numerous decisions and a definition of moral turpitude, as follows:

"An act of baseness, vileness or depravity in the private and social duties which a man owes to his fellow men or to society in general, contrary to the accepted and customary rule of right and duty between man and man."

LAW HOLDS OTHERWISE

She adds:

"You were convicted in the Federal Courts of having used the mails in a scheme to defraud; you were also convicted of larceny in the State courts.

"Both of these crimes were held by our department at Washington to involve moral turpitude, in consequence of which a warrant for your deportation was issued."

U. S. JOB BILL GIVES WORK TO THOUSANDS

$116,000,000 Voted by Senate, Practically All to Be Spent by July 1

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Senate today passed the emergency $116,000,000 public works bill.

This completes the congressional action on the appropriation, which becomes available immediately upon signature of the bill by the President. The administration intends to put the funds into operation at once on a vast public improvements program extending throughout the nation. Sponsors of the bill said it would give employment to thousands.

'DROP IN THE BUCKET'

The emergency bill and the bill providing $45,000,000 for loans to drouth-stricken farmers were sent to the President late today from the Capitol.

The measure got through the Senate finally today after Senators La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, assailed it as a "drop in the bucket" and demanded additional appropriations to be expended for direct relief.

Passage of the bill was made possible when the Senate receded from three amendments in dispute with the House. It abandoned the amendments without record votes when it became an issue of making the money available before the Christmas recess.

Of the sum, $80,000,000 would be spent in road construction. Inland waterways improvements and public buildings construction will get the remainder.

HOOVER HAS CONTROL

President Hoover is given authority under the bill to allocate the money as he deems necessary, if any emergency arises. It is contemplated that most of the money will be spent before the first of the new fiscal year—next July 1

Congress has now passed two emergency relief measures—the bill authorizing $45,000,000 for drouth relief having won final approval last night. Both measures were on their way to the White House today.

Farm Cash Not Needed Before Christmas, the House Is Told

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Agriculture Department has advised the House appropriations committee it would not be necessary to appropriate any of the $45,000,000 for drouth relief before Christmas.

Chairman Wood of the committee said today he had been informed that if the funds were supplied immediately after the holidays they would be available soon enough, because of the preliminary work that has to be done before the money can be dispensed through loans to farmers.

Authorization for the fund was finally voted by Congress yesterday. The bill now must be signed by President Hoover.

Wood's committee will hold hearings during the holidays to ascertain how the money is to be used. Under the legislation, loans are to be made by the Secretary of Agriculture to drouth, storm and hail stricken farmers for feed, seed and fertilizer.

Turkey and Fixin's to Make Christmas Real to Thousands

Remember Your First Turkey? Wouldn't You Like to Bring Joy to Some Poor Little Boys and Girls?

If you were a little boy—or a little girl—and you just knew, from other pinched days, that there certainly wouldn't be any turkey on your table Christmas Day.

Nor any oranges!

Nor any candy!

If you just knew, in fact, that if there were anything at all on the table to help fill that chronically hungry void you would be thankful indeed . . .

And then found—to your speechless delight and almost unbelief—a smoking turkey waiting to be carved by your excited dad or your suddenly joyous-eyed mother . . .

And gleaming white potatoes, mounded in a dish . . .

And tomatoes and peas . . .

And real, sure enough candy!!!!

Wouldn't you remember that day—always? And wouldn't you, when you grew up, make it a point never to miss a chance to aid some other little boy or little girl—or their family—to the limit of your resources, that they, too, might have that sudden happiness out of all that seemed so black?

Of course, you would—and that is why the Christmas Basket Fund is held out to you today by the Boston Evening American as the medium through which you can give this happiness, easily and without effort, but with just as much effect.

There have been many, many Goodfellows who have aided thus far in the fund, but there cannot be too many.

Here are the items that YOU can aid in putting into a Christmas basket this year, Goodfellow—food sufficient for several days:

One turkey.
One dozen oranges.
One can peas.
One can corn.
One can tomatoes.
One can string beans.
One can baked beans.
Two loaves bread.
Half a pound of coffee.
One can squash.
Two pounds of sugar.
Half a peck of potatoes.
Pound of hard candy.

HEART-TOUCHING PLEAS

These constitute the contents of one basket, and a person who has not had the personal experience cannot appreciate the joy that is

CREW OF SUNKEN FISHERMAN BATTLE HEAVY SEAS TO SHORE

FISHING BOAT IS LOST OFF N. H. COAST

Schooner Angelina Sinks Off Portsmouth After Striking a Submerged Object

Portsmouth, N. H., Dec. 20—Near a point of utter exhaustion, the captain and crew of an ill-fated Gloucester fishing schooner reached the Isle of Shoals coast guard station this morning after a several-hour battle with the elements in a small boat.

They told a story of rowing mile after mile in a heavy sea, their hands almost frozen to the oars, while their distress rockets went unanswered.

ABANDON SHIP

Their schooner, the Angelina, of Gloucester, sank off the Maine coast, just outside Portsmouth harbor, a few minutes after they took to the small boat.

Capt. Frank Vintimiglia told coast guard officers that at about 2:30 o'clock as his ship was proceeding toward the fishing grounds off Boone Island, near York Beach, Me., it suddenly struck a submerged object.

With his crew of three men, Capt. Vintimiglia, said he worked at the pumps for nearly 30 minutes, before giving up the attempt to save the ship.

"It was an awful experience," Capt. Vintimiglia told Comdr. S. R. Sands of the First District Coast Guard. "For hours our small tender was at the mercy of a heavy sea. It was snowing and our faces and hands were actually cut by the hard driven flakes. It seemed that we would never reach land. We sent rocket after rocket into the air, but no answer came. For a time it appeared that we were doomed. Then in the first break of dawn we sighted the Isle f Shoals coast guard station."

RETURN TO WRECK

After a few hours' rest, Capt. Vintimiglia and his crew boarded Patrol Boat No. 279 and returned to the scene of the wreck.

The Angelina was a 55-foot motor schooner and was valued in excess of $10,000.

President Alexander F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen disclosed the negotiations with announcement of the appointment of a committee of three to confer with a similar committee from the American Federation of Labor.

'BAD BOY' SAVES FATHER'S LIFE

A sigh of relief escaped from the lips of Matthew Karolczyk last June as he saw his 15-year-old son, Joseph, leave their South Boston home and start out for the Lyman Reform School in Westboro.

It was not that the father disliked the boy or was happy to see him go, but Joseph, growing up with American children, had always been somewhat of a puzzle to his family. Old world discipline had no effect on this new world boy, and Matthew was glad enough to entrust his upbringing to state authorities.

So Joseph was formally surrendered by his mother and father and taken away as a "stubborn child."

A more sincere sigh escaped from the lips of the father last night when Joseph returned, for Karolcyzk was in a ward at Boston City hospital and physicians had declared that only young, vigorous blood could keep him alive.

Karolcyzk was stricken with a severe stomach ailment since his son left home and yesterday physicians declared he had only a short time to live unless a transfusion were made.

Last night Joseph visited Boston City hospital and gave a pint of his blood in a transfusion operation.

Washington, Dec. 20—Steadily increasing pressure in Congress for payment of the entire $3,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus in cash promised today to make the issue one of the most important to be considered in this session after the Christmas holidays.

Of the 434 members of the House, there being one vacancy, 92 have signed a petition demanding the ways and means committee report out a bill for a bond issue to take up the adjusted service compensation certificates.

TEXAN SEES VICTORY

The petition, placed on the Speaker's table by Representative Patman (D.), Texas, after Representative Hawley (R.), Oregon, chairman of the ways and means committee, failed to grant him a hearing, has been getting new signatures daily.

"The fight is going right on," said Patman today.

"I am confident that when members learn what their constituents think of this proposal, we will get a majority of the House to sign the petition."

Senator Vandenberg (R.), Michigan, is expected to lead a fight in the Senate after the holidays for cash payment of the insurance certificates.

MELLON FIGHTS PLAN

Although Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is flatly opposed to the plan, advocates are ready to carry their fight through the entire session.

The government has some $700,000,000 in a sinking fund toward payment of the insurance certificates on maturity in 10 years. Backers of the bill propose to make cash payment optional with veterans. Therefore, they say, a bond issue of a billion dollars might be sufficient to make the payment.

COURT UPSETS RAIL VERDICTS

Gasoline motor driven cars are not obliged to give the "statutory signals" of blowing the whistle and ringing the bell required of steam locomotives at grade crossings, according to a decision of the full bench of the Supreme court today.

Verdicts of $7605.50 for the death of Charles N. Libby, of Barnstable; $7605.50 for the death of Albert Paul Libby, and $1000 for his conscious suffering, were reversed, and judgment entered for the N. Y., N. H. & Hartford R. R. Co.

The Libby's were riding in an automobile driven by the late Albert C. Smith on the night of February 23, 1927, and the machine collided with a gasoline car at a grade crossing on the Hyannis road in Barnstable after the last regular passenger train on that line had passed the crossing.

STATE MAY ASK FOR RECEIVERS

Hartford, Dec. 20 (AP)—An application to the Superior Court for receiverships for the Connecticut Trading Corporation and the Connecticut Utilities Corporation, two subsidiaries within the organization of F. E. Kingston & Company, brokers in receivership, was forecast today by State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee, as the result of exhaustive examination of the affairs of both.

Mr. Shippee called to the attention of State's Attorney H. M. Alcorn an alleged irregularity in the organization of the Trading company. Yesterday Alcorn secured bench warrants against three officers of that concern charging perjury. The state claims these officers asserted the initial capitalization of $55,000 had been paid in by them. The state claims this money had not been paid in.

The warrents were against John H. Reid, of West Hartford, president and treasurer; Frank H. Smith of West Haven, vice-president and assistant treasurer, and Edmund J. Grandahl of Hartford, secretary.

MAYOR DEFENDS HIGH WAGES

Mayor Curley advised against lowering the high wages for labor that were a result of the World War in an address today before the Mayors' Club of Massachusetts, holding its monthly luncheon at the Parker House.

Europe faces a threat of war in 10 to 20 years because of the ferocity of industrial competition, he said.

He pointed to an estimated number of 25,000,000 women employed in industry in this country, as compared with 500,000 a generation ago, as one of the causes of the present depression. Labor-saving devices, he said, was another cause, and had deprived 3,000,000 of a livelihood and would probably deprive many more in the next decade.

"The wages of labor should not be lowered because the American workman is the best customer for our goods," he said. "And I wonder what would become of America in this period of crisis except for social legislation put through by organized labor in our generation.

"Unless there is serenity and happiness in the home, another period of depression like the present one would make America the most prolific field in the world for Communistic disturbances."

Senator-elect Marcus A. Coolidge, a former mayor of Fitchburg, was the guest of honor and spoke briefly.

Old Law Ends Sunday Movies in England

London, Dec. 20—No movies will open on Sundays in England after tomorrow. Their opening on Sundays has been held by the Supreme Court to be definitely illegal, and unless an appeal has been heard by December 21, and the judgment has been reversed, no motion picture theater will be able to open on Sundays except under a penalty of $1000 for every performance. The judgment was given under the terms of the "Lord's Day Observance Act" of 1871, which is still operative.

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—About 400 barrels of wine, stacked on a W. Broadway sidewalk after the owner, the Alba Wine Company, had been dispossessed for non-payment of rent, were seized today by federal prohibition agents. The wine was valued by the agents at $100,000.

LUCAS TELLS OF HIS PART IN NORRIS PLOT

G. O. P. Committee Director Wanted to Beat Senator; Calls Him Democrat

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, acknowledged before the Senate campaign funds committee today that he had ordered literature circulated in Nebraska in the last campaign against Senator Norris.

Lucas said the literature cost $4237 and was provided at the request of regular Republicans of Nebraska who were apprehensive lest Norris—a Republican independent—would be elected.

He said the money was a "personal contribution" and he wanted to see Norris defeated because he considered him (Norris) a Democrat, in view of his opposition to Coolidge and Hoover.

PLACED PRINTING ORDER

He placed the printing order with Charles I. Stengle, editor of the National Farm News, printed locally. It consisted of cartoons on the "wet and dry question," pamphlets of editorials on Norris and a reproduction of a letter to Nebraska Democrats by the "Democratic Victory scouts" asking them to vote for Norris, which had a postscript asking for votes for Hitchcock.

Lucas said the literature went into six or eight states, but only the letter and pamphlet went into Nebraska.

He denied he had endeavored to inject the religious issue into the campaign.

Lucas said he had no desire to keep the matter secret from the Nye committee, but he did want the fact kept from the Democrats because of fear it would renew with vigor their effort to elect Norris.

CALLS NORRIS DEMOCRAT

When the regular Republican organization appealed to him for help, he said, he realized the national committee couldn't "participate" so he paid personally for the literature.

"Norris is a Democrat," he said. "He opposed Coolidge and every one of Coolidge's policies. He opposed Hoover in 1928 and supported and made speeches for Smith. If that doesn't make him a Democrat there isn't a Democrat in the United States."

Nye wanted to know if Chairman Fess, of the National committee, had not avowed the committee's support for all Republican senatorial candidates, including Norris.

Lucas said he would like to see Norris vote with the Democrats in organizing the next Senate "because that would make him regular."

NORRIS WAS REPAID

"But Norris has just been elected on the Republican ticket in Nebraska," put in Sen. Dill, Democrat, Washington. "That's the unfortunate part of it," Lucas replied. "The Democrats were much interested in repaying Norris."

Nye asked if President Hoover should not be considered a Democrat, by Lucas' reasoning, if he appealed for the "election of a Democratic Congress in 1918."

Lucas said he knew nothing about that, but Mr. Hoover "had done a lot to make him a Republican since then."

Herbert, Don't You Hear Us Calling You?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Now that President Hoover has powers plenipotentiary to distribute that relief plunder we would like to plug our town.

Our town is only a wide place in the road.

But we would like $17,500,621 to make it wider.

And about $23,000,000 to deepen the river.

The river ain't any good to nobody. But it's cheaper to deepen it than to fill it in.

We could just about use up $56,546,989 for another postoffice.

The postmaster is tired of living in a hollow tree and pushing letters through a knothole.

Not that a postoffice is any good. Nobody reads letters any more.

They're ascared to open 'em. A bill will jump out and bite them.

The rest of the money we could use on the railroad. Our town is 300 miles from the main line of the Northwestern and Chiropractic R. R.

We're on a spur that pays quartlet dividends in rust. But we would like to four-track that spur.

If there's any left over we would like a harbor. We ain't near the ocean. And we're further away at low tide. But it would make the other towns jealous.

Think it over, Herbert. You saved Belgium once and not one of those birds voted for you.

RYAN HEIRESS IS SUED FOR BALM

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Miss Adele Ryan, granddaughter of Thomas Fortune Ryan and part heir to his $120,000,000 estate, is being sued for $500,000 on the ground she broke up a wedded song-and-dance team.

The action was disclosed when Miss Muriel Johnston, night club entertainer, petitioned the State Supreme Court for a preliminary examination of Miss Ryan to support her charges that the heiress stole the affections of Robert Johnston, her partner in matrimony and music. Decision was reserved.

Over a period of four years, the complainant avers, Miss Ryan sought to lure Johnston from his wife by pursuing him on two continents and showering him with gifts of books, perfume, liquor and money. She succeeded, it is charged, and he now has a "luxurious apartment" on the fringe of Greenwich Village.

The plaintiff also alleges Miss Ryan and Johnston made two excursions to Boston and registered at a New York hotel.

Miss Ryan has filed a general denial. Mrs. Johnston has instituted suit for divorce, requested by her husband, she claims, so that he might marry the heiress.

The Johnstons were sweethearts at the University of California and were married in Berkeley, Cal., in 1923. As the team of Bob and Muriel, they gained attention here and abroad.

LA FOLLETTE JOINS HIM IN FIGHT

Bay State Figures Read in the Senate to Prove $16,000,000 Is "Only a Drop in Bucket"

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—Results of an independent survey of employment conditions were read to the Senate today by Senators La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts.

They called for additional federal aid beyond that proposed by the administration.

The two senators read replies to questionnaires they sent to the mayors of every city in the country with a population of more than 5000. Not all cities had reported. LaFollette canvassed the mayors west of the Allegheny mountains and Walsh those to the east.

LaFollette said he had received 100 replies, and these reported that demands for assistance this year had increased from 100 per cent to 500 per cent over last year.

BAY STATE FIGURES

Walsh reported another hundred replies. In Massachusetts, he said, the mayors of 15 cities reported an average of 9.9 per cent unemployed.

He said in Springfield and Pittsfield the calls of families for relief had increased three-fold this year over last. He said 993 families were receiving assistance in Springfield and 280 families in Pittsfield.

LaFollette characterized the pending $116,000,000 employment appropriation as a "drop in the bucket" and asked Congress to make available "a sufficient sum to be expended through the Red Cross or some governmental agency in relieving distress."

Walsh has proposed a $100,000,000 appropriation to be used in dividing the cost of relief work with cities and States.

WALSH DEMANDS AID

Administration leaders who sat by waiting to pass the $116,000,000 emergency employment appropriation have contended that Red Cross officials and other local relief agencies were meeting the situation.

LaFollette said his figures were "a complete refutation" of this contention.

Declaring he considered the relief program "highly inadequate," Walsh said he hoped the senators who agreed with him would get together during the recess or shortly afterward to work out a "constructive program to the end the federal government can show its willingness to share its part in relieving conditions."

GARRETT FAILS TO SEEK BAIL

The name of Judge Patrick J. Keating, at present presiding in the Suffolk Superior Court, was brought forward today as the most likely to preside at the trial of Oliver B. Garrett, tentatively scheduled for Jan. 9.

It had been expected that Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall would assign the Garrett case for trial today, but when court had closed no such action had been taken.

Although Garrett still has two more court days in which to file a plea for the removal of the default warrant and request his temporary release on bail, there was no indication that his counsel, Herbert D. Callahan, plans any such move.

It seemed a certainty that Garrett will spend his Christmas and New Year's holidays not among his family and a gay throng of merry makers, but behind his cell in the Charles st. jail.

Prominent among those mentioned for the post have been Governor Weeks, who was elected to Congress in the last election; Congressman Ernest W. Gibson and former Governor Redfield Proctor. Governor Weeks retires in a few weeks.

The famous British cricketer, J. W. H. T. Douglas, and his father, were believed to have been among those who lost their lives. It was believed Eris Hjelt, commander of the Oberon, was saved by his brother, Ossi Hjelt, the skipper of the Arcturus, but his wife and daughter, 4, were lost in the collision.

Among the passengers rescued was the English girl, Phyllis Tipping, a secretary at the American consulate at Helsingfors, who telegraphed her father in Surrey, England, that the Oberon had gone down in four minutes.

QUIET AGAIN RULES IN SPAIN

Madrid, Dec. 20 (AP)—Martial law appeared to be only theoretical in Spain today. Soldiers who have patrolled the streets of the principal cities for the past week had been withdrawn from active duty and were concentrated in their barracks.

The government remained alert for any emergency, however, and Premier Berenguer, who has been ill, was back on the job again denying rumors that the cabinet was on the point of resigning.

Burrage Ball Brilliant Event

Priceless Orchids Transform Copley-Plaza Ballroom Into Tropical Garden

KATHERINE BURRAGE'S presentation ball will go down in Boston history as one of the most beautiful and smartest ever given for a young debutante. The Burrage orchids changed the ballroom at the Copley-Plaza into a tropical garden with realistic effect. Priceless and exotic blossoms banked the stairways and Miss Burrage and her mother, Mrs. Russell Burrage, received in a bower of gorgeous lavender and pink orchids. Miss Kitty was radiant in white tulle touched with silver and Mrs. Burrage was very beautiful in bright light blue lace en train.

PALMS AND FERNS turned the reception room into a garden with tiny pathways leading to the stone benches for rest and refreshment, the borders lined with pink begonias. Spanish moss draped the chandeliers, giving a most unusual dimmed effect and elkhorn ferns hung from the boxes. We saw the first white poinsettias and pink, not to mention the brilliant display of red ones which flanked the entrance. Orange trees and plants, which only a horticulturist could name were used with magical effect. A sumptuous breakfast was served at 2 and the small tables were decorated with lighted Christmas trees.

YOUNG ALBERT BURRAGE, JR., and Mrs. Burrage were noticed among the hundreds of guests, she looking lovely as usual in turquoise blue satin, and the sub-deb daughter of the Russell Burrages, Miss Alice, was glimpsed hidden in a box with two school friends, Nancy Whitman and Anne Sortwell. Among the young matrons we saw Mrs. George von L. Meyer, breathlessly lovely in ivory lace and the most beautiful deb of the season, in our opinion, Miss Anne Warren, in black velvet with touch of gold.

BARBARA YOUNG another beauty, was in blue satin and equally charming was Miss Constance Wentworth in white and silver. Petite Betsy Saltonstall powdered her retrousse nose gowned in white satin and Virginia Rice wore a gown that could have only appeared in a dream, of white chiffon encrusted with silver. Like a charming cameo was Martha Means in black lace and vivacious Lydia Joy Draper, so aptly named, was having the time of her life in turquoise velvet. A group of Harvard men appeared to be quite happy when she arrived.

The dance of Fire and Water will be interpreted by Miss Ann Frothingham and Miss Eugenia Frothingham. The Mothers' voices will be rendered by members of the Junior League Glee Club. Tickets are on sale at Herrick's and Filene's through the 23rd. On Wednesday, the 24th, and thereafter, they will be at the box office of the Repertory Theater.

MISS PRISCILLA PRINCE, daughter of Mrs. Charles Barnard Prince of 63 Marlborough st., is to be in charge of the ushers at the dance concert to be given in Jordan Hall, Wednesday evening, January 7, by Hans Wiener, famous Viennese dancer. She will be assisted by other Junior League girls.

Miss Ruth Swift, Home From Vassar, Wears Pink Tulle

AN EFFECTIVE GOWN ON a sweet girl was pink tulle in tiny ruffles worn by Miss Ruth Swift. Miss Swift came home from Vassar for the holidays and is leaving today for New York and later will go to Chicago before returning to college. Eugenia Frothingham was another dainty miss who wore blue taffeta becomingly and Laura Holmes, one of the few who wears her blonde hair parted in the middle and looks well, was stunning in black tulle. Katherine Fabens of Salem was also in black, and Jane Brown in contrast wore all white. Susan Brewer dodged the camera in a garnet velvet and Mary and Virginia Cowles greeted their hosts of friends in satins, very long.

ONE OF THE MOST NOTICEABLE velvet gowns was worn by Rosamond Rust, pale green with jade earrings. Betty Soule and Edith Parker of Vincent Club fame were gowned in black, and Mrs. Everett Morse was so surrounded by her friends we could not catch a glimpse of her dress. In apricot satin, and most becomingly so, was gowned Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, and Mrs. Charles Mixter wore black velvet with diamante regally. Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth appeared late in plum-chiffon, and Miss Susan Sturgis came in green moire.

AMONG THE LATE ARRIVALS was Miss Susan Moller, very stunning in white satin touched with black. The gowns of the young folks were simply marvelous, quite the loveliest of this season. Mrs. William Coolidge, Sr., was in black velvet, with Mrs. George Engleman, who wore a gleaming gown of silver with her lovely jewels, and Mrs. Butler Ames in black and Miss Anna Nourse in white were noticed in the crowd. Kitty Talbot, Lorna Livermore, Felice Leeds, Agnes Boardman, Caroline Hunnewell and numerous others drifted about on the arms of the hosts of good-looking men who acted as ushers. It was a party long to be remembered.

In Old Boston—No. 439

Massachusetts Tercentenary, 1930

PROMENADE CONCERTS on the Common attracted the leading families of the city 75 years ago. These concerts were given twice a week during the summer months, and as Boston boasted of its bands, the affairs were social and musical successes. A newspaper of 1855 said of the crowds: "There are the Beacon st. millionaire, the Boston mechanic and the belle with her accepted." MONDAY—Engine at fire.

Crippled Children to Be Taught in Homes

By NANCY BREWSTER

Physically handicapped children will have public school education brought to them in their homes by a corps of six teachers, beginning shortly after January 1.

This new plan was announced by Patrick Campbell, assistant superintendent of the Boston Public schools, at the meeting of the Boston City Federation of Women's Clubs in the Y. W. C. A. yesterday.

He told what the city is doing for handicapped children.

Only one class of handicapped children will not be included in the new plan of home instruction at present—the boys and girls afflicted with epilepsy, but these will eventually be included, it is hoped, by the school committee, Mr. Campbell said.

STAMMERERS AIDED

Special classes for stamerers have succeeded in correcting 1000 pupils during the past year, the speaker said.

Children with heart disease also have a chance for public school instruction through classes held in Boston City Hospital and at the House of the Good Samaritan.

The contrast between the treatment of truants today and in the old days when they were sent to Deer Island and were classed as criminals was brought out by Campbell as he described the disciplinary day school conducted in an old mansion in Roxbury, where the rattan is never used and where the cause of continued staying away from school is sought first.

GIRLS TRAINED

Only one boy a year has required further discipline such as is given at Chelmsford in the Suffofik school.

The vocational training for girls given at the Boston Trade school for girls was described by Miss Esther McNellis and Julia Murphy, director of playgrounds, told about "Recreational Opportunities for Children of Boston."

Mrs. Wallace Starr Kind, chairman of the educational department, presided at the meeting.

Professional Club to Stage Parisian Revel and Frolic

Twelfth night revels as they are celebrated in Paris on the Feast of the Epiphany will be incorporated in the fanciful sketch of a Reveillon as it might take place among the artists of Paris when members of the Professional Women's Club frolic in the Hotel Statler ballroom on the evening of Jan. 3.

Gay, masquerading students will frolic through the "Street" and "Sidewalk Cafe" with its singers and dancers furnishing amusement.

The highlight of the evening will be the choosing of the king and queen of the revels, with jester, heralds and attendants from among the audience. Exciting episodes will take place in the "studio" where works of art are to be judged and the costumes for the ball censored.

Members are requested to come in fancy dress to lend atmosphere. The co-operation of all members is requested to make this a success.

Tickets for a buffet supper from 10 till 11:30 o'clock in the Georgian room, are on sale by Mrs. Mary R. Campbell of Cambridge.

Settlement House Children to Enjoy Christmas Party

Two Christmas parties are on the program today of the Ladies' Catholic Settlement House in the South End.

Army of Workers Speed Holiday Mail

There will be no delivery of mail on Christmas day and the zero hour for mailing cards for delivery before the holiday is 10 p. m. tonight, Acting Postmaster William E. Hurley announced today. Additional clerks and laborers were assigned to the main post office and all substations today, to attack the mountain of packages and letters that are piling in.

Tons of mail received at the Burlington ave. and army base clearing house stations for parcels post packages swamped the force of workers previously assigned, although a large number of extras had been added to the regular forces.

Shimmering Frocks for Cocktail Hour

By ANN ARDEN

THE HOURS from five to seven, known as the cocktail hour, are useful to those who make a strong fetish of fashion, for checking up on what the other feminine guests are wearing, more than for whetting an appetite. The dinner table conceals so much. And what follows dinner may be so demanding of undivided attention that a consequential detail or two may be overlooked!

* * *

FROCKS FOR convivial occasions on these glamorous nights are too much the masterpieces of fabric and cut to be slighted in the least detail. They send out twinkling lights from sheer metal clothes and dusky velvets. The swish of taffeta is present and the soft sweeping movements of chiffons. Embroideries, eyelet details, and fagoting prompt a second look, they are so lovely.

* * *

EVEN A THIRD look may seem not too bold when a delightful detail justifies. And sleeves, of course, provide an evening's study in themselves. Drama is lent to the simple gesture of reaching toward an extended tray, by wing sleeves shimmering with paillettes, or by pleated sleeves in a series of tiers. Leg o'muttons shirred at the shoulders and held in glove-like snugness almost to the elbows, are interesting. Sleeves that stop short of the wrist and are cuffed with flaring lace are new and nice.

* * *

THE THEATER hour seems to have found a particular mode of its own this season. Any number of informally-formal frocks are being worn by smart women. By terming them informally-formal we mean those dresses that strike a medium course between afternoon and evening. They may have long or short sleeves, may be worn with or without a small formal hat, and must be ankle length. A simple, high-belted lame with short sleeves edged in fur noted recently is an excellent example of this type.

* * *

THE FROCK pictured is of sheer supple lame, flowered in Dresden design of roses and their green leaves. The skirt is subtly full from diagonal sections on Vionnet lines. The neckline is draped to tie, belt of the material is fastened with smart metal buckle. The short sleeves are edged in sable-dyed squirrel. An attractive frock, that will answer many demands during this festive season.

Ex-Kaiser Shops Like a Patriarch for Xmas

By WILLIAM W. CHAPLIN.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

Doorn, Holland, Dec. 20—Former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, observed as he was making preparation for Christmas festivities at his castle, appears perfectly content to be a patriarch in this tiny community. Time has softened the lines of his face, and his hair, like a patch of snow, gives a benign expression to his aging features.

Here, at least, Wilhelm still is an important figure among the humble peasants who pay him all the deference due to an ordinary country squire. He goes about them with perfect freedom and with only one attendant, strolling about the streets and looking in at the windows in the little town's half-dozen shops. Occasionally he stops in at its cafe for a refreshing glass of beer.

Each morning from 9 until 11 Wilhelm works in the Rosarium he has given the village, digging, planting, chopping and sawing as best he can with his one good arm. Boys and girls on bicycles coast to within a few feet of whence comes the sound of beech logs falling apart under the busy saw of the once mighty monarch.

With the villagers Wilhelm is merely a man among friends.

There may still be signs of pomp and power inside the castle, with resplendent uniforms and blazing medals, but before the people all is simplicity.

"We always call him highness," the villagers say, with kindly Dutch smiles, "he likes it—and it doesn't cost us anything."

STAGE FACING U. S. CENSOR, PRIEST WARNS

New York, Dec. 20—The stage today is in a position similar to that of the saloons before prohibition, the Rev. James M. Gillis, editor of the Catholic World, yesterday told a meeting of the Catholic Actors' Guild.

Just as the saloons brought on national prohibition, he asserted, a decadent stage is bringing on national censorship.

GUEST OF HONOR.

Father Gillis was guest of honor at the guild's monthly meeting in the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, and he devoted his talk to a gathering of 300 actors to the "morality of the stage and the imminence of censorship." He asserted:

"Not only the so-called Puritans and the churches, but also newspaper editors galore are agreed, and even people on the stage are saying what they said about the brewing business, one two, and three years before prohibition.

"Even brewers in those days were sending out the word, 'Behave, behave, or you'll bring down upon us national prohibition. But in spite of the warning the saloons still sold to soldiers in uniform. The result was that national prohibition was brought down upon us all."

READS HEARST EDITORIAL

Father Gillis then produced a sheaf of newspaper clippings discussing censorship in the theater, and first among them he read a recent editorial by William Randolph Hearst warning the stage to adopt voluntary censorship before it is forced upon the theaters.

When he had finished reading the clippings, he declared:

"This paganism we see on the stage today makes us just as pagan as they were in the days of Justinian and Nero.

"It is quite obvious to any one with his eyes and ears open that there will be national censorship inflicted on the stage unless it mends its ways. It must clean up or be cleaned up. It must sweep, away the filth or the Board of Health will play a hose upon it.

WOULD BE CALAMITY.

"The decent people of the stage are really trembling lest censorship be invoked in some way. National censorship of the stage would be a calamity.

"What is this realism of the stage today? The thesis, in substance, is that we must not blink at the facts of life. 'I want meat, strong meat,' they say, and 'Let's have strong stuff.'

"But that's hypocrisy. They really don't want to see life as it is."

Tests on Rabbits Bare Serum Cure for Pneumonia

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

New York, Dec. 20—Rabbits suffering from pneumonia, usually fatal, due to pneumococci "type 3," have been successfully treated with an anti-serum, especially prepared for this type of infection.

Thus hope can be entertained for a possible anti-serum treatment of type 3 pneumonia in human cases, although up to this time this disease has defied serum treatments.

LITTAUER FUND AIDS

Elizabeth L. Watson and Georgia Cooper are the scientists who have done the experiments at research laboratories of the New York health department. They are partially aided financially by the New York University Littauer Pneumonia Fund.

These scientists first produced severe pneumonia in a number of rabbits, by inoculating these animals with pneumonia germs of "Type 3," derived from strains taken from human patients.

UNTREATED RABBITS DIE

Some of the rabbits, about 18, were left untreated. They all died. Another similar group was treated with an anti-serum 24 hours after the disease had set in, following germ innoculation. In these animals the disease symptoms were checked and the animals recovered.

The serum was a highly concentrated type of three pneumonia germs. Strain was injected into the horse, and following his immunization the anti-serum had been prepared.

The significance of these favorable experiments seems to be that suitable doses of a concentrated anti-serum for type three might prove curative in human cases. But human experiments still remain to be carried displayed by those who receive baskets.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE NEEDY POOR of Greater Boston are in the offing. Into homes of thousands cheer will enter with the spirit of Yuletide, all packed in a basket from the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund. Last night in the warehouse of the Economy Grocery Stores on D st., South Boston, a score of men went to work packing these baskets. Sometime on Monday the packing will be finished. A fleet of trucks will rush these goodies to the door of needy poor in Boston and vicinity. Each basket will contain a turkey, dozen oranges, two loaves of bread, half-pound coffee, two pounds sugar, half peck potatoes, pound of candy and canned goods—including corn, peas, tomatoes, string beans, baked beans and squash. Charles Littlegood, superintendent of the Economy Stores warehouse, is seen checking the American fund baskets, while Miss Lee Aronson is showing you what each basket will contain when delivered to homes of really needy people. The "Goodfellows" of Boston have made this treat possible. There is yet time to do your part. Send in your contribution.

Such unfortunate persons, for example, as the following:

A Roxbury woman who writes:

"Trusting someone will come to my aid as they read your wonderful paper, as I have been sick for some time with heart trouble and my husband gets very little. We can scarcely pay our rent, much less for proper food for the body, which for lack of I am ebbing away fast.

"Our family consists of four. A boy, 13, is in need of clothing to wear to school. I will be glad for something warm, as our place is very cold and our underwear is poor.

"Trusting if I should be alive for Christmas that you will be so kind to remember us and give us a Christmas basket, as we had a very poor Thanksgiving. May God bless you and your co-workers in your kind heart toward mankind."

LIVE IN TWO ROOMS

Or the woman in South Boston, mother of four children, the oldest less than seven years and the youngest only three weeks. She has a poor kitchen stove that is inadequate to heat even two rooms, the rest being shut off for the winter, except for uncomfortable sleeping.

On that recent zero night the mother slept in a chair, giving her own bed to the children, one of whom is just recovering from whooping cough and another from pneumonia. The mother owes $7 for a store bill and can get no more credit.

Goodfellow—you'd win $7 and more in one poker hand. You can kick in something to alleviate misery such as this.

"I had to borrow two cents for a stamp for this letter," the mother ends.

Rally 'round, Goodfellows. The final drive is starting. No matter how small your donation, it is welcome. And if you can give generously—give.

BILL IS FILED TO BAN MERGERS

Rep. Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton today filed a bill to prohibit future consolidation or merger of gas or electric operating or holding companies unless special authorization has been obtained from the Legislature.

At the same time the minority floor leader of the House filed a measure to change the existing law with regard to the establishment of municipal lighting plants.

This proposed legislation would permit a community, which has voted to establish a plant, if it fails within 150 days to agree with the local company as to terms of the purchase, to take steps towards the establishment or acquisition of a plant.

Autoist Sued for Damage to Train

The cars were part of a gasoline-propelled train.

Father Egan, a former student at Boston College, will celebrate his first high mass at the monastery New Year's Day.

FESS TO GO, NEW G. O. P. PLAN

Washington, Dec. 20 (INS)—The machinery of the Republican party organization, which has developed a lot of knocks during the past 10 months, is to be given a thorough overhauling soon after the first of the year.

New parts are being assembled and new policies will be instituted—all designed to give the party a running start toward the stiff fight which party leaders envision in 1932, when, it is expected, President Hoover will be a candidate to succeed himself.

Washington heard with interest today that Mr. Hoover has turned to his native California for a new chairman of the national committee, Ray Benjamin, long prominent in Republican affairs on the Pacific Coast, but comparatively little known in Eastern circles.

Announcement of Benjamin's selection and of the retirement of Senator Simeon D. Fess, whose chairmanship during the recent campaign has not been marked with conspicuous success, is expected soon after the holidays.

TWO ARE HELD IN SLAYING

New Britain, Ct., Dec. 20—Joseph E. White, 51, of Murray ave., Worcester, and Ernest Davis, 17, of this city, was held under $1000 bonds on a technical charge in police court today for questioning in connection with the murder last night of Gilmon Miner, about 50, proprietor of a bowling alley in the I. O. O. F. building on Arch st.

They were arrested last night, soon after the discovery of Miner's body in the entrance to the bowling alleys.

Miner was locking the doors to the alleys when three bullets were sent into his body.

Frank Howes, superintendent of the building, ran from the second floor to the street and saw Miner lying in the doorway dying. Beside him were a paper bag containing the day's receipts at the bowling alley and several packages, wrapped in Christmas paper, addressed to his wife in Fitchburg, Mass.

Medical Examiner John Purney said powder marks on the victim indicated the gun had been fired at close range.

Turkeys of All Varieties Are Here, Even Russian

Turkeys are in the market, big turkeys, small ones, native birds and Russian. Some are fresh, some are frozen, but they'll all look pretty much the same after Christmas dinner.

The best turkeys are averaging 55c. a pound retail today. These are native birds, hand plucked. Fancy Minnesotas and Vermonters are selling at between 50c. and 55c. Frozen Russian birds, which are very meaty, bring about the same price. Cold storage birds can be bought anywhere from 35c. to 45c.

According to market men, the average family is buying a 10 pound bird, and 45 cents seems to be the general price people are paying.

For people who cannot afford a turkey, the market offers duck and geese. Best grade poultry in both of these costs about 28 and 30 cents for the pound. Ducks weighing five pounds or thereabouts are the best in flavor and meatiness. Delicious geese tip the scale at 9 to 10 pounds.

Magic Glasses Stolen, Healer Can't Cure Self

Poona, India, Dec. 20 (AP)—Death from a broken heart, "superinduced by a belief that God had deprived him of the divine power of healing," was the extraordinary verdict rendered by a coroner today in the strange and mysterious case of James Brandon, a former resident of Nashville, Tenn. Brandon, who in later life devoted himself to asceticism, occultism and mystic healing, was found dead a week ago in the squalid cave in which he lived, close by an old Hindu temple.

MAKES A FORTUNE

Evidence brought out at the inquest today showed that Brandon, who came to India 15 years ago, amassed a fortune by treating the sick lame, halt and blind with herbs, mystic potions and magic prayers.

On his deathbed, it was testified, he complained he had lost his occult power a few weeks ago because his "God-given spectacles" had been stolen.

"Through the spectacles I was able to see God," witnesses at the inquest said Brandon told them, "and through the spectacles God allowed me to see causes of my patients' diseases and showed me how to cure them. Now, without them, I am helpless even to heal my own malady or to save myself from death."

It was revealed that a short time ago some youths, as a practical joke, raided Brandon's banyan tree hut, stealing all his property, including the spectacles.

Although Brandon later offered a reward of 5000 rupees (about $1800) for the return of the glasses, they never turned up.

BODY IS BURNED

Brandon upon his death bed ordered that his body should be burned on a funeral pile of sacred sandalwood, and his ashes given to his Brahmin friends. His Hindu associates carried out his wishes.

The American recluse is declared by his Hindu friends to have achieved many miraculous cures. Sufferers of all faiths came to him from many parts of India, and he became known as the "American Buddha." Outside his tiny hut, made of leaves, long lines of broken humanity could be seen daily seeking his supposed supernatural powers of healing.

Police are now trying to find a claimant among Brandon's relatives for the substantial bank account which he left.

Bandit, Trapped in Flight, Shot Down

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—While Christmas streamers rippled above him, an unidentified bandit shot it out with four policemen in a hallway at W. 44th st and Sixth ave., early today. He's dead.

As he dashed from a holdup of two restaurant employes on 44th st., police trapped him in the hallway. He fired one shot and they fired one each.

Maniac Holds 2000 at Bay, Kills Self

Perpignan, France, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Senegalese soldier See Da, who ran amuck, killing three persons and wounding four and then holding 2000 troops at bay for many hours, was found dead, a suicide, today. He shot himself in the head while all of the garrison at Fort Serrat were besieging him with bombs, rifles and tear gas.

HIRAM JOHNSON TO GO ON AIR TONIGHT

Washington, Dec. 20—Senator Hiram Johnson (R.), California, will deliver an address against American adherence to the League court in a nation-wide radio address tonight.

His speech, in answer to Senator Capper who upheld the court in a radio talk last week, will be delivered over the Columbia broadcasting system beginning at 9:30.

Senator Johnston is one of the leading members of the foreign relations committee which has just decided to shelve consideration of the issue for a year.

Johnson has been opposed to American adherence to the court ever since the question has been raised. He fought it before the Senate four years ago because the court is a creature of the League of Nations, and entrance by the United States into the court would be a back door entrance into the league.

He will tell how the Root formula and the revised statutes of the court fail to meet the objections to advisory opinions delivered by the court at the request of the League of Nations and its members.

PRIZE WALTZ AT OLD TIME DANCE

Lilting waltz tunes and lively galops so popular with dancers in bygone years will come into their own again next Tuesday night when an Old Timers' dance will be held, in Roseland Ballroom at Norway st. and Massachusetts ave., in aid of the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

And those who were adept at glide waltzing in the old days will have another opportunity to show their places in the contest. Prizes of two hand-painted wall placques will be awarded to the winners.

Dan Moriarty, manager of the Roseland Ballroom, has arranged a program just suited to the fancy of old-timers and an enjoyable evening is in store for those who, by their attendance, will help the needy families of Greater Boston.

McMullin's orchestra, formerly featured at Crescent Gardens, has donated its services to the Basket Fund and will play a lengthy program of favorite old tunes.

CHRISTMAS IS CHEERY INDEED

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THESE ARE the theater's dull days. Even in good old times, the drama invariably responded to holiday good cheer by setting up first class lamentations. There was no good cheer! Actors were prevailed upon to take Christmas vacations without pay, or were expected to practice the arts at half salary. Theaters were closed and the public left to such modest diversions as shopping and an occasional night off with the cinema.

* * *

ALL THIS has been the rigid rule of the theater ever since the days of the Wilbur Opera company and Haverley's Minstrels. Except for occasional and discriminate ventures in the drama, rarely has there been any great manifestation of Yuletide blessing. The theater survived, of course, because these were but seasonal lapses—not to be enjoyed, naturally, but manfully withstood with the fortitude that senses better times just around the corner. For that matter, the local playgoer is not to be left high and dry this approaching Christmas week. In this town he never has been.

Nicholas Young

* * *

IN SPITE of the holiday distractions in the market places, the new week will have more than its fill of good theatrical fare. Business may be as bad as reported by the plodding wayfarer along the Rialto, but there are few signs of it in the week's bulletin. While a year ago there were six playhouses bidding for customers against the importunities of rival shops, this season's assailing column of the drama numbers five. This would be a fair showing in any kind of weather.

* * *

THE NEW WEEK brings two outstanding attractions to town and two more that may well be regarded as something to be taken without pain. Naturally, the appearance of Ethel Barrymore in blackface in "Scarlet Sister Mary" takes first call on the inveterate first-nighter. The prospect presents enlivening possibilities, for with all of our intense admiration for Miss Barrymore and her fine variety of talents, we have never been able to successfully envisage her as a lady of color practicing forbidden arts.

* * *

INTEREST in Miss Barrymore's play may be expected to center in some degree upon the new generation of Barrymores now testing untried abilities. Ethel Colt Barrymore, charming daughter, is a member of her mother's company.

* * *

ANOTHER HOLIDAY temptation is "Strictly Dishonorable" which does this old town great service by being responsible for the reopening of the Colonial. The first performance will be given on Christmas night. With a record of more than 500 consecutive nights in New York, this comedy moves upon Boylston st. with every natural expectation of remaining quite a spell. For two seasons, it has been Broadway's best and most prosperous investment. It comes to Boston at exactly the right moment.

CLASS KEY TO STAGE SHOW

The new vaudeville show at Loew's Orpheum is marked by the distinction of each offering on the bill. Jack Sidney and his clever dancing divertissement in "big top" atmosphere, leads the attractions. Every style of dancing is embraced in the presentation and the youthful stars who take part display great skill at the art. Sidney, himself, scores heavily with his song and dance versatility.

Slapstick comedy that is a hilarious hit is the contribution of the comic Abe Reynolds and his two droll aides. Gene Martini's "Accordiana" adds piano-accordion melody to the bill; Kelo Bros., comedians, are responsible for much humor and many laughs and the two Rubio Sisters perform some amazing equilibristic stunts.

Added features include a new Boy Friends' comedy, "Blood and Thunder," and Hearst Metrotone News.

NEW WORKS BY STRAVINSKY ARE HEARD

By MOSES SMITH

Serge Koussevitzky returned to conduct the Boston Symphony in yesterday's concert, after more than a week of illness, and forthwith the elaborate 50th anniversary ceremonies were resumed.

Specifically, the orchestra, with the help of the Cecilia Society Chorus (trained by Arthur Fiedler) performed Stravinsky's new "Symphonie de Psaumes," composed for the occasion. Curiously, this latest work of one of the greatest composers in the world was performed yesterday for the first time in America, but not in the world, for Brussels heard it last week.

The same composer's Capriccio for Piano and Orchestra was also played yesterday for the first time in America, with Jesus Maria Sanroma as soloist. Although but a year separates the creation of these two scores, they are centuries apart in style. The Capriccio is a continuation of Stravinsky's neo-classic style, with which he has been pre-occupied for the last decade, though there are more than traces of nonconformist diablerie. The Symphony, on the other hand, employing three psalms from the Vulgate for texts, is a return to the barbaric manner of "Sacre de Printemps" that revolutionized the world of music. Although it is unsafe to express such an opinion after a single hearing, Stravinsky seems to us to have been influenced here by the work of his junior contemporary and countryman, Prokofiev.

Mozart's Symphony in G minor began, and Schonberg's arrangement of Bach's Organ Prelude and Fugue in E-flat ended, a concert about which much might be written.

"Part Time Wife" Now on Screen at the Met

"Part Time Wife" is at the Metropolitan, featuring Edmund Lowe and Leila Hyams. Lowe thinks his wife is spending too much time at the golf course. Their quarrels lead to a separation, after which his health breaks down. Lowe's doctor orders him to take up golf. Miss Hyams as the bride is ready to return to Lowe. When he learns she has been posing for lingerie ads, the old quarrel is resumed, while a caddy and golf collaborate to patch things up, thus forming the story.

ACTRESS CALLED ON TO TELL IT TO WORLD IN "GULLAH"

By DANIEL REED

Who Dramatized "Scarlet Sister Mary," at the Wilbur

Our burnt cork minstrel man gave us a dialect impression that has for so long stood as the standard of Negro speech. No Negro ever talked this way, but the bulk of white theater audiences didn't know that. But, at last, an honest rendering is being given the various reproductions of "black speech" in this country. And audiences are rapidly becoming discriminating and exacting.

True, the real Africa speech and dialects cannot be generally used in the theater where a large public attends. No white man or northern Negro would understand what the average backwoods darky was saying if they hear him "as is." So there has to be a modification of his speech, a modification based on the real. It must be suggestive of the actual intonal quality, speech rhythm, and word pronunciation. It should never distort. It should rather clarify. That is all.

Daniel Reed

The most interesting of all Negro dialects, is, perhaps, the "Gullah." So much has been said in the last ten years about it, and so honest have been the presentations of it both in the academic and the art worlds, that a great many people are acquainted with its peculiarities and its charm.

Different fine writers have used different ways of transmitting black thoughts to readers. But the writers of Gullah dialect have a more formalized and prescribed dialect to handle. This accounts for the evenness in the quality of South Carolina writers who use modifications of the Gullah speech in their works—a speech they overhear in the sections close to the Carolina coast all the way from Waccamaw Neck to Lady's Island. There are variations in the different localities, but the root speech is the same and the Negroes in these sections seem to have preserved their African linguistic qualities more than any other class of blacks living in a white society. They seem the least contaminated.

Perhaps, most careful and insistent upon an honest reproduction of the black quality of speech and manners in the theater is Miss Ethel Barrymore who is directing her own production of "Scarlet Sister Mary," Julia Peterkin's Pulitzer prize novel.

Miss Barrymore is sensitive to the strange subtleties of Gullah dialect and in her various contacts with the Negroes who use it she has acquired a true knowledge of it.

LIKE BUBBLES IS SPIRIT OF THE DRAMA

By ANTOINETTE PERRY

Tempo — that proportion of spoken word and suspended word and suspended action which will produce the most effective result.

If it must be reduced to words, the co-director of "Strictly Dishonorable," the comedy coming to the Colonial for an engagement beginning Christmas night would define something like that elusive thing called "tempo." I happen to be that co-director myself.

Tempo isn't speed alone. It's a dozen things. It's balance. It's sureness. It's maintaining, carrying over from speech to speech an evanescent, perilously fragile thing that, if it's there, will hold an audience literally breathing in rhythm with the movement of the play—and, if it's lost, is almost impossible to recapture.

"Strictly Dishonorable," for instance:

It's like bubbles, that type of play. You must keep them floating, keep new bubbles following. If they drop, they're gone forever.

If a play drops it isn't always the fault of the actor who doesn't pick up his cue. It's equally the fault of the actor with the line before, who doesn't make a little bridge of expectancy to lead over to the next speech.

I never get over being amazed at audiences. Think—they've paid money to come in; they've paid for something they haven't seen. They have come with a faith that we are going to give them something.

I like to watch them; feel them lifting with the play, becoming part of it; literally breathing with the play's rhythm. And they will do that, too, if the director and the actors are doing their share.

Viennese Dancer Will Be Seen in Jordan Hall

Hans Wiener, celebrated Viennese dancer, is to give a program in Jordan Hall Wednesday evening, Jan. 7. He is an exponent of the new German movement in the art of the dance. The keynote of his technique is complete subjugation of body rhythm to music. With equal finesse he dances to the music of Bach, DeBussy, Rimsky-Korsakoff or Stravinsky. Hans Wiener is to be assisted by his own dance group of girls and by Otto Aschermann.

LEILA HYAMS

MISS HYAMS appears in the farcical comedy, "Part Time Wife," at the Metropolitan.

FATE WEAVES THE CLOTH

There has been discussion as to the meaning of "Kismet," the title of the famous play, which as a photoplay, starring Otis Skinner, is now held at the RKO Keith's for another week.

"Kismet" (or "qismet") means destiny, or fate. An Oriental, learning that his daughter has run off with a person below her caste, will say, "It was her Kismet," meaning that it was her fate and beyond her control. Nearly all the Eastern people are fatalists, and one of the reasons why they have become known as philosophical and self-contained is because they excuse the greatest catastrophies as being "Kismet."

It isn't so much that they feel that what is done is already done and there is no recalling it—which would come under the name of philosophy—but the Koran tells them that Allah has preordained their lives.

WINS PLACE IN THE SUN AT LAST

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

NOW WOMAN GETS her place in the film sun of wartime derring-do. In all other pictures of things that were done "over there," man had his day; "War Nurse," feature photoplay given its premiere at Loew's State, yesterday, accords womankind its share of the glories and hardships of those days "somewhere in France." It is a triumph of realism, and a personal triumph for Edgar Selwyn, the director.

* * *

THIS IS MR. SELWYN'S second venture in talkiedom. From his stage training he has brought keenest insight to bear upon the double play of camera and microphone. Deft indeed is his hand. He works cannily. In portrayal of war's horrors his stroke is sweeping and effective. And yet, if at times he lays heavy hand upon his "canvas," he suddenly re-establishes our mental balance by exquisite touches, notably well done and unforgettably pleasing. That he has fared so well in a field out of which have come so many war pictures, is high tribute to his ability; he weaves in new threads, gives us a film that grips the interest, holds himself faithful to the actual, and still gives wide swing to the imagination.

Edgar Selwyn

* * *

THOSE WHO READ the anonymously written serial on which the picture is based will have no fault to find with the screen transcription. Mr. Selwyn's fidelity is closer than has been the lot of most works of this sort. He has even aided the original narrative; and which pleasurably varies the grimmer passages.

* * *

THE ROLE OF "BABS" is in the hands of the talented June Walker. This is her movie debut; she meets the test. Her characterization is excellently done. The always good Zasu Pitts is Cushie; Anita Page does well as Joy. Of the men in the cast the honors fall to Robert Ames and Robert Montgomery; the latter as Wally and the former as Robin. The production is a sterling one, labeled Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

FROM THE LOEW offices comes announcement of another "Loew's January Festival," based upon the success of the initial venture 11 months ago. Among the pictures the State and Orpheum are to have next month are: "Inspiration," with Greta Garbo; "The New Moon," with Grace Moore and Lawrence Tibbett; "Hell's Angels," for the first time at popular prices; "Reducing," starring Marie Dressler and Polly Moran; and "Devil to Pay," with Ronald Colman.

Scollay Vaudeville

HOWARD HUGHES TO GET D'ARRAST AS DIRECTOR

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service
Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20—You can count on Howard Hughes to pick the live ones. That boy just naturally has a penchant for getting good directors. Didn't he get Lewis Milestone for "Front Page"? And now listen to this piece of news. Harry D'Arrast, who has been spending his vacation with his mother in Paris, returns to New York to make a picture for Paramount. As soon as he finishes that he comes to California to make a picture for Howard Hughes.

Louella O. Parsons

Harry is no dumbbell. From past experiences he knows if he wants a success like "Laughter" he has to do things his own way. He has no intention of leaving Howard Hughes in the middle of a picture, as he has done with other producers when they failed to agree on story treatment. So listen carefully. Harry's contract specifically states that he shall not direct any picture for which he has no sympathy. In other words, the story must be mutually agreeable to Harry and Howard.

Do you read Vina Delmar? She is the girl who has written innumerable flapper yarns and innumerable stories about girls who leave the straight and narrow path. Miss Delmar has a nice, easy style and is, I suppose, one of our best exponents of modern novel writing. Her "Bad Girl" has been acquired by Fox. It was dramatized and is now running as a stage play in New York. Paul Kelly, for whom so many theatrical and movie folk had sympathy when he was sentenced to San Quentin, is playing the lead. I don't know what players will do it for Fox. The purchase of the novel shows the trend of the times. Speaking of that, Warner Brothers have changed the title of "Ex-Mistress" to "Beauty and the Boss."

• • •

So much successful experimenting has been done by Warner Brothers with directors and actors who have never had outstanding successes that it is interesting to know that John Adolfi will direct George Arliss in "The Ruling Passion." I don't mean to infer that John Adolfi isn't a good director nor an experienced one. He has been directing pictures ever since I was writing reviews for the old Morning Telegraph and I am mighty glad that he is to have this chance for if he makes a good Arliss picture we will be hearing more about him. Again I wax bromidic and say nothing succeeds like success.

George Arliss

I know that Eleanor Boardman is one of the best looking young women in Hollywood and I know that everybody says that her performance in "The Great Meadow" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will bring her back as one of our leading actresses. Some of the smart boys at Columbia, having had a little inside information on her work in "The Great Meadow," have signed her to play the lead in "The Flood" with James Tinling directing. John Holland and Monte Blue have the male leads. Remember we said Eleanor was reading the scenario.

When the history of Palm Springs is written and one day I am going to write it, God willing, we will have to mention all of the scenarios that have been written in the desert quietness. Winfield Sheehan and Raoul Walsh are taking James Gleason to Palm Springs for the week-end. Mr. Gleason is to write "Women of All Nations" for Raoul, and the three of them will gather together and work out ideas. This is the next Captain Flagg and Sergeant Quirk number with Victor McLaglen in his usual role and Eddie Lowe ditto. This time Greta Nissen is the naughty, naughty vamp.

Looking Ahead

DECEMBER 29—

Bernard Shaw's "The Applecart" at the Tremont.
JANUARY 5—
"Artists and Models" at the Shubert.
"June Moon" at the Wilbur.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH FOR THE MIND

Perhaps because of his mischievous, Panlike countenance, Bernard Shaw is usually thought of as an ageless soul whom the years don't touch. As a matter of fact, he is 74, an age when most men have retired for the remainder of their lives. But Shaw goes merrily along producing new plays, new articles, new novels and most anything else that comes from his pen onto that strange, green note paper which litters his work desk. He has no idea of retiring. Retiring? Ridiculous. He is planning his work on a definite program for years ahead.

In the 40 years of his intense activity Shaw has produced 40 plays, and his newest one, "The Apple Cart," will be presented at the Tremont on Monday night, December 29, for an engagement of two weeks. When this one was produced in Warsaw, at the Malvern festival in Wales, in London and in New York, it came with a certain degree of surprise, for there was a notion that he was through with dramatic works.

Practically anything is expected of Shaw, however, so the surprise element did not last long. And to prevent his admirers from sweltering under too much suspense, Shaw has explained that he will follow "The Apple Cart" with another play.

NOVELTIES IN MUSIC FEST

Several novelties will be included in the program of the Candle-Light concert to be given by the 18th Century Symphony Orchestra in Jordan Hall on Monday evening, Jan. 12. Heinrich Gebhard will be the soloist in the Mozart's Concerto in C major for piano and orchestra. In the Vivaldi Concerto, the four soloists will be Mr. Gebhard, Constance Morse, Ethel Hutchinson and Reginald Boardman.

The orchestra and soloists will, as in former concerts, wear Colonial costumes and play by candle light.

LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD

Childhood training in the theater is invaluable, according to Violet Heming, who co-stars with Walter Woolf in "Ladies All," new comedy opening at the Majestic next Tuesday night. She says:

"If the youngster is started in acting before the self-conscious stage of its development begins, the imagination of a child is so active that they are naturally perfect actors.

"Most children lose this natural quality as soon as they become conscious that there is a difference between the world they create by their imaginations, but start the child early in the theater, before it has reached that stage, and habits of naturalness are formed which give them a tremendous advantage as they go on to the more important adult parts."

Miss Heming should know whereof she speaks. She comes of a clear line of theatrical ancestry. Her father was Alfred Heming, theater owner and producer. Her mother was Mabel Allen, an English singer and the first Glory Quayle in "The Christian." Her uncles, the Hastings and the Daltons, are well known on the English stage. One is Charles Dalton, who has been in this country for several years.

Bowdoin Square

Beginning tomorrow the Bowdoin Square for the first half of the week will put forth a high-grade stage vaudeville show comprising seven RKO acts together with a picture program of special worth. The films are "Three Faces East," "Top Speed" and "High C's." Wednesday is cabaret night with extra features. Beginning Thursday the bill will offer "Tol'able David," with Richard Cromwell; also "A Lady's Morals," with Wallace Beery.

Modern and Beacon

Lila Lee is leading lady of "The Gorilla," now at the Modern and Beacon. She was born on July 25, 1905, in New York city. Her real name is Augusta Apfel, and when but a child she made her debut on the stage in Gus Edward's kid revue, being billed as "Cuddles." In 1918 she entered motion pictures.

Scollay and Fenway

Marlene Dietrich may be seen at the Scollay and Fenway in "Morocco," in addition to seven acts of vaudeville. "Morocco" is a love story of the French Foreign Legion. Supporting Miss Dietrich are Gary Cooper and Adolphe Menjou.

Uptown—Olympia

Marilyn Miller's starring production, "Sunny," is at the Olympia and Uptown. "Sunny" was Miss Miller's stage success. Miss Miller offers several new dances, while Joe Donahue, imported from the stage, as her partner, Lawrence Gray, O. P. Heggie, Judith Vosselli, Clyde Cook, Barbara Bedford and MacKenzie Ward are among those in the cast.

SON IS UNLIKE THE FATHER

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who has the leading role in "Way of All Men," now at the RKO Keith-Boston, says he has no desire to follow in his father's footsteps. The elder Fairbanks impresses with his sheer vitality, while his son wants to carve a niche for himself as a character actor. Doug Sr., likes to do fantastic and colorful pictures like "The Thief of Bagdad," while Doug, Jr., wants to do "L'Aiglon," tragic play of the unhappy young Napoleon.

The father is essentially an athlete, while the son is first of all a scholar.

NEEDY AIDED BY THEATER

LETTERS FROM BOSTON AMERICAN READERS

Letters from readers are welcomed. Letters should not exceed 250 words, should be written on one side of paper, and must bear writer's name. Names will be omitted in publication, if requested. Address Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq.

Writer Terms Hoover Failure as Planner

Editor Boston American:

The two big issues today in America are Unemployment and Prohibition. The evils caused by the latter are beyond imagination. It will take this country a long time to recover. Prohibition has also contributed heavily to unemployment.

Machinery and mergers are the main factors in creating idle hands. No one is sure of his job and each is on the lookout lest he be "framed" and his job given to a relative of a higher-up. Distrust reigns. Poverty breeds meanness.

The concentration of wealth is staggering. Many millionaires possess 10 to 50 millions.

President Hoover, the engineer, has failed as a planner. Perhaps the fog of the tight little isle dimmed his mental acumen. Of course he would do nothing to offend the rich rulers of America. But for the war would he now be an American?

The Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals has warned him to watch his step. They will look upon it as betrayal if he were to work for modification.

Hoover dropped the Democrats and reversed the saying to read: "I'd rather be a Republican and be President." He showed wisdom in getting away from the League of Nations, although now he favors the World Court.

Woodrow Wilson made him a legendary figure, feeding the little ones, but now he cannot devise any way to help the idle millions. Strange that he couldn't have stayed with the Democrats after they had advertised him to the world.

The Hoover administration has been a big disappointment, showing no real grasp of the current situation and no red-blooded action to prevent it or to remedy it. They drift with the stream. "Dolce far niente. The Lord's in the Heavens, all's well with the world."

Hoover may not even be renominated by the Republican party. I'm sure that the corporate interests, which are America, will not care to back a sure loser. They will trot out Coolidge, the silent Cal, who secretly seeks the nomination, playing a waiting game. Yet Coolidge cannot win again as Franklin Roosevelt will walk into the office.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

It seems lamentable but true that we will ever have with us the busy-bodies—the persons who find time so heavy on their hands that they feel they must constitute themselves their sisters' keepers. So now do we have a group of women who have come to tell us that smoking for women is degrading and immoral.

Smoking to excess is equally harmful to man or woman and just as foolish as intemperance of eating or drinking—but it still remains a question of a person's individual taste or appetite for the cigarette and not in any sense a question of the moral standing of that man or woman.

We hear and know that times are hard, money scarce and enough help cannot be found for the poor and needy—to say nothing of the help that should be given in the way of toys, good books, clothing and other children's necessities to the thousands of crippled children in institutions and all the poor love-starved children in orphanages. Yet this newly formed organization is going to spend quantities of good money for office rent, printing literature, posters and stickers for cars to try to persuade Miss and Mrs. Smoker that smoking is degrading and immoral. Bosh—what a waste of time and money.

Of course a fanatical movement of this kind often gains momentum—thousands of women with too little to do and not enough grey matter to think independently and clearly for themselves will give their time and donations so may I suggest that this organization not neglect that territory below the Mason and Dixon line where women 70 and 80 years of age sit placidly smoking their pipes as they have done for years. They should not be left unenlightened.

In closing I would suggest that if this new group of reformers recall some of the awful effects that the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment has had on the lives of the men, women and children of our great nation, they would then have some idea of what their movement will accomplish.

MARGARET S. REED.

Pleads for Cash Payment of Bonus for Veterans

Editor Boston American:

It seems all hands have said their piece in regards to adjusted compensation certificates. I wish to say we should have bonus paid off in cash for we could put ourselves in better positions.

The vets were good enough to do their part in just cause for other countries.

After we came home—to have prohibition put over on us. Enough of the youth of our nation gave lives over there for the U. S. A. to give us the bonus.

American citizens out of work and the non-citizen employed! Do you think that is fair? I say no! I say a non-citizen should be laid off and a citizen put to work.

Now let's get together and show the spirit of '76. Give us our rights and put us back to the standard of 1912 and then our government will save plenty of money. In 1922 our government lost plenty by sinking a fleet of warships, and also money loaned out which could of paid the bonus twice over. Another question I wish to have answered: Why a vet who is compelled to borrow on the bonus must pay interest? Let England and France pay their debt to us and then we can have our cash bonus and all will be happy.

EDWARD J. LENNON.

Veteran Wants Action On Soldiers' Bonus

Editor Boston American:

A word about the soldiers' bonus. What is the matter with the American Legion that they don't wake up and do something about it, that would help to get it passed? I can't understand how they can sit back without even a word, while thousands of ex-service men are begging in the streets for the price of a cup of coffee, while the Government owes them money.

I say, as an ex-soldier, give it to them for God's sake. Give it now and don't wait for 20 years, most of them will be either dead of hunger or old age by that time. They are asking only for what belongs to them to tide them over this bad spell. Write to your Congressman at once and demand a little action.

Come on soldiers, let's go!

THE LAST MILE -:- -:- By Lewis Allen Browne

Chapter 26

VIOLA FORSAYTHE screamed from fright at his sudden movement.

She made a pretty good guess, in the next instant, as he pointed at the initial. Without any pretense as to modesty she stood facing him.

"You didn't have to act like a barbarian. I'd have shown you if it was so important to you," she muttered, "and now suppose you tell me what the big idea is."

"The Simmons girl had an 'S' like that, didn't she?"

"Find out," she snapped.

"I saw it, at the morgue," Sid lied.

"Then what———"

"You got sore at her because she was stealing your sweetie, Bart Culver. You had a fight with her in Bart's apartment."

"What of it?"

"Listen, Viola. You got a lucky break—you were as guilty as hell—you killed Thurber in cold blood. Now, for God's sake, help me save Dick Walters—the poor devil is innocent——"

Viola laughed derisively.

A Few Threats

"He is. The girl stumbled and fell on her head; that's God's truth."

"What about the attack?"

"Whatever happened was of her own volition, after she had to admit to him her true character. All this maudlin rot about her innocence and purity—it must give you a big kick."

"Not interested, Mr. Cavanaugh."

"You will be before I get through with you."

"What do you mean?"

"If you don't help me willingly I'll have to drag you into court, and also Albert Sedgemere, who is putting up for this apartment and your beauty shop. And how about the booze you are selling to your lady patrons?"

"Come in and sit down, we'll talk it over." Viola was nervous by this time. Her self-assurance gone.

"I'll be back here tonight at seven, with Rogers, the lawyer, and you'll make us an affidavit."

"Will that let me out of being a witness?"

"The only promise I will make is this—I'll have you and Sedgemere in court unless you make the affidavit as to the character of the Simmon girl."

"Oh, all right," Viola promised.

But she didn't intend to be in the city or the state when Dick Walters went to trial.

The next day was Ethel's funeral. Sid attended. Noticeable at the services, held in the church at Hampton, was a great mass of flaming red roses, with no card attached. Word went around, however, that Dick Walters had ordered those roses. Sid saw to it that this rumor started, for he had sent the roses himself.

Ethel's mother was there, although she was supposed to be such an invalid that she couldn't get out. She was unusually calm. Her sister and Mabel Shelton were with her. Sid studied Mabel Shelton with a great deal of interest.

Lawyer Rogers' first move was to delay the trial as much as possible. He wanted the sensation to die down. He wasn't very successful in this although he got a brief delay on the claim that certain evidence would take much time to secure.

Every day Sid went over to see Cicily, and on each visit she seemed more aloof than ever. Whether it was her grief, or an increasing coolness toward him, he couldn't [illegible]. Dick's mother was up and about the house, but she was like one in a daze.

Every grain of hopeful information that Sid could glean he took to Cicily.

New Evidence

One day, when he had told her that he had new evidence that would prove the true character of the dead girl, Cicily sighed.

"Nothing can undo the fact that Dick is behind bars, that people believe he is a murderer and worse—even if he is freed his life will be ruined, my life is ruined, and mother may not live through the ordeal. Sid. And when you knew how Dick believed in that worthless creature, and then you found out how utterly worse than worthless she was—to keep it from Dick was really criminal."

"I did what I thought was best—there is always the human element to consider. I'm doing all that I can now."

"I feel that it is too late, Sid."

"Never! We've got to save him! You must forgive me and work with me, Cicily."

"I'll work with you—for Dick's sake. I don't see how I can ever forgive you, Sid."

Sid attributed it to her terrific grief. He believed that ultimately she would forgive him and all would be well with their romance.

What galled him most of all was the fact that somewhere, having a gay time of it, were Mert Nissinger and his bride. He didn't know where Nissinger had gone on his honeymoon and he greatly feared that Nissinger would read of Ethel Simmons' alleged murder and be afraid to come back until after the trial.

As often as possible he visited Dick.

One day Dick had read in the papers of the approaching execution of Fred Mayor.

He became terribly depressed.

"It was terrible, there in the death house, Sid," he said. "I went up twice to see poor Mayor. It seems to me that if I were there I'd welcome the chair—it would be so much better than the living hell of waiting—waiting—waiting — poor Mayor, he's got to do that last mile down through the green door, some night this week—this is his last week."

"Think of other things, Dick—think of the new evidence we have got for you," Sid begged.

Not Afraid of Chair

"All I can think of is that death house— honestly, Sid, if I had known, when I visited poor Mayor there, that I would be thrust in there some day, I'd have taken poison or something, just as soon as I realized that the fall on the rocks had killed her."

"You won't get that far, Dick, old man; we'll pull you through."

"I'm not afraid of the chair—honestly I'm not—nor of that so-called damn last mile. I'd welcome that, I know. But they say the men almost go crazy when one of the poor devils is prepared for the chair—some say that the lights don't dim when they turn on the death-current but some of the men up there swear that they do. I wonder—"

He got up and paced. Sid Cavanaugh sat on the cot, hot and cold by turns. He was suffering more than Dick, he believed. Perhaps he was.

Dick stopped and lighted a cigarette. Sid watched him. His hand was quite steady.

"I read some place, just recently, that condemned men never fear the chair until the last few hours. They say that the strongest and most brutal devils are the ones who collapse, but the men with more mentality go through with it pretty well. I can't believe that—the trained and educated brain can imagine and visualize more."

"What you have to do is to concentrate on the trial. Plan, think up schemes, search your mind for seemingly trivial incidents that will help you—you won't even get to the death house, Dick."

Dick Walters came and sat down on the cot beside Sid.

"Old man," he said, "I've got a hunch that you are wrong. I've got a hunch that all h-ll can't save me."

"Nonsense, we'll pull you through, Dick."

But when Sid Cavanaugh left him he was never more depressed.

At first, when Ethel Simmons was reported foully murdered, Mabell Shelton was a badly frightened woman.

She wondered just how much Ethel had told Merton Nissinger about her. She wondered if Ethel had told Bart Culver anything, for Ethel had told Mrs. Shelton of her several affairs with Bart when Nissinger was away.

But as time passed and not a word was said to her, Mabel Shelton felt more sure of herself. She had, naturally, as Ethel's closest friend, given out statements to some of the reporters and sob sisters about Ethel—what a wonderfully bright girl she was, how innocent she was, and all that. This was more for her own sake than anything else. Mabel Shelton had guessed part of the tragedy. She had read about Ethel's dress being torn. She guessed that Dick Walters had seen that tattooed initial and then had killed her in what he believed to be righteous anger. She recalled that night when she saw the initial on Ethel and had told her plainly that she was an awful fool.

Mabel's Trick

But now Mabel was feeling more secure. Charlie Wagoner was coming secretly to see her, such times as her husband was on the road.

If she had known that Sid Cavanaugh, Sid's closest friend, the newspaper man, was on her trail, she would have been greatly worried.

Sid got Molla Hansen, a clever girl writer on his paper, to help him. Molla became friendly with a neighbor of Mabel's. She slipped a couple of items about this neighbor's bridge party into the society column, although the woman did not have the social position to warrant it. Through this woman Molla learned that Mabel Shelton had a "gentleman caller" whenever her husband was gone, one Mr. Wagoner, who owned a small chain of shoe stores.

One night Sid trailed Wagoner out to Hampton. He saw him go around the back at Mabel's home under cover of darkness. He waited about an hour and then played an ancient trick. He pushed the buzzer button at the front door half a dozen times with great violence and then darted around to the back door.

He got there just as Wagoner was slipping out. He grabbed him. Wagoner started to fight.

"Which will you do—talk, or be bumped off right here on the back doorstep?" Sid asked.

Wagoner wilted. They went in the back way. Mabel screamed when she saw them.

"Might as well make the best of it, Mabel," Wagoner said, "this detective has got it on us."

"I'm not a detective," Sid assured them.

A Hold-up

"What's this, a hold-up?" Wagoner demanded.

"Not for money—it's a hold-up for information—about Ethel Simmons, Mrs. Shelton, you know a great deal about her—you know that she came here, pretending to stay with you, and went down the grove to Nissinger's cottage."

"The very idea! Talking of a dead girl like that! Who are you?" Mabel Shelton cried.

"I'm Dick Walters' closest friend, also a newspaper man. I'm here to get evidence to help Dick, but if you won't talk I'll turn newspaper man—if you get what I mean?"

"But I can't afford to talk—my husband—it would ruin me. I can't talk."

"Sure you can—it's the only way, Mabel." Wagoner said.

He didn't give a hoot about Mabel Shelton's life being wrecked, when in this jam. He was a family man and he wanted to keep his skirts clear.

"But you won't quote me in the papers!"

"No," Sid assured her. What he hoped to do was to get her testimony in court.

"Well, I've got some letters sent here to Ethel, I'll show them to you," she said, and went into another room. She reappeared in a moment, but instead of letters in her hand, there was an ugly looking revolver.

Sid saw it and started to leap up.

At the same moment there was a flash and a report.

The next surprising thing was to see Mabel Shelton collapse.

"She's shot herself—you scared her into it!" Wagoner cried with an oath as he leaped up from his chair and ran to her.

Sid picked up the weapon.

If she had shot at him she certainly missed the mark.

A hasty examination and Sid said, "The fool has fainted."

They soon restored her.

"It went off in my hand—I was going to try and scare you away," Mabel said, when she was able to sit up. "It frightened me so that I guess I fainted."

"Assault with intent to kill," Sid said, coolly.

"Try and prove it—I'll testify against you," Wagoner declared.

"And while you are testifying you can answer a few questions as to what you were doing here, why you have been coming here for more than a year, whenever Shelton is out of town, and a few other things I shall see that they ask you."

No Pity

Sid smiled at him. He had the upper hand. He believed that Mrs. Shelton had no intention of shooting. She merely wanted to frighten him away being nearly frantic for fear that she would be involved in the trial of Dick Walters and that her husband would discover her gross infidelity.

"Well, look here, if Mrs. Shelton tells you all you want to know, will you let her out?"

"Of course. She is not directly involved."

Sid felt that she deserved no pity. He would give her false assurance and then have her brought to court at the time she was needed to testify.

Woman Pays, Even for Engagement Ring

Chicago, Dec. 20 (AP)—Whoever coined the expression, "It's the woman who pays" was quite right about it in this particular instance. The jewelry firm that sold an engagement ring to Lester Becker, who gave it to Kathryn McMahon, of Evanston, contended there still was $80 due when the engagement broke up, and obtained a judgment in court for that amount. Kathryn paid.

Broadcast of Famous Violin Virtuoso Heard Locally on WBZA at 10:30 P. M.

The much awaited radio debut of one of the world's greatest violinists, Jascha Heifetz, will be heard tomorrow night over WBZA on the Slumber hour, heard at 10:30 p. m. The violin virtuoso, who has electrified audiences throughout the world, has never before broadcast, and he states that his first radio concert may also be his last.

Heifetz makes this statement on the basis that it is likely that either he or the public will be disappointed. Heifetz frankly admits that he has avoided broadcasting up to the present time because he felt that radio was not a sure medium for the true transmission of music. The factor which has convinced him to go on the air is that he believes radio has become a cultural force. If his concert, which he considers an experiment, is successful he shall attribute it to the "really remarkable development of the science of broadcasting and coincidental improvement of the receiving set."

A picturesque feature of the program is that Heifetz will make his own announcements. Following a very brief introduction to the radio audience the celebrated violinist will run his own broadcast. He will tune his Stradivarius, tell what he is going to play and put on the whole show himself.

Celebrated compositions with which Heifetz has thrilled great concert audiences will comprise his program. Isidor Achron will be at the piano.

To Face "Mike"

JASCHA HEIFETZ, world famous violinist, who will make his radio debut in the Kellogg Slumber Music program tomorrow night, coming through WBZ-WBZA at 10:30.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

In the room where we peck at a typewriter and talk with you subscribers through the medium of these printed lines there is a microphone; it is the Evening American hookup with station WLEX, over which are broadcast several times a day news, features, and other forms of entertainment.

We have no quarrel with that situation; matter of fact it is our duty to aid in a small way in getting these broadcasts on the air. But we do believe it is an imposition upon good nature to be obliged to sit passively by and listen to Martha Lee, three times a week for 15 minutes, describe to you female customers the best way to cook gastronomical perfections, which almost invariably causes us to beat a hasty retreat to a nearby lunch emporium where we may subdue the fierce desire Martha Lee's descriptions have aroused. Being a mere man we get that way.

If anyone reading this has an old pair of ear-muffs not in use please mail them to this office; they might help us in our difficulty.

News of tremendous importance to radio fans has reached us through an INS dispatch, which tells us that within a few months there will be in experimental operation in Pittsburgh the most powerful broadcasting station in the world. Between the hours of 1 to 6 a. m. station W8XAR, experimental transmitter of station KDKA, will blast out into the ether programs propelled by a power of 400,000 watts, compared with 50,000 watts, the maximum now used.

The contention of many experts is that superpower is the solution of many broadcasting difficulties provided accurately adjusted equipment is employed. We shall all watch for the initial broadcast with great interest.

Those Were the Happy Days of life; who hark back to the days when a leg was a "limb," a sweet young thing was a "chicken" and not a "redhot mamma," and it was no disgrace not to own a horseless-carriage. Sweet dreams of Tom Early's on Lagrange st., where Mrs. Early did the honors at the polished mahogany. But what we got started to say was that you "old" rascals tune in on the Davy Tree hour Sunday evening at 5 o'clock over WEEI, and get an earful of the songs we used to think were just a little bit of all right.

THROUGH THE INS we learn that the Federal Radio Commission has rejected the recommendations of chief examiner Ellis A. Yost that all 40 cleared channels should be used by 50,000 watt stations, and remanded the report to him for further action. Yost was directed to recommend which stations should be awarded 50,000 watt power under the present limitations of the commission which provides that maximum power should be used on only 20 of the cleared channels. He is soon to make his recommendations.

Rafel E. del Vizo, Jr., is the Spanish voice of station WQAM at Miami, the southernmost broadcaster in the United States. He broadcasts news items and programs in Spanish twice daily to WQAM fans in the West Indies and Latin America. Officials of the station estimate their "radio population outside the United States at 500,000.

Baseball is out of season, nevertheless there will be a doubleheader on WBZA at 10 tonight, Pagliacci versus Cavalleria Rusticana. Not content with putting on one opera a week, the Chicago Civic Opera Company will offer the two above, mentioned on the air. Because the two operas are so short, listeners will be privileged to hear most of Pagliacci and about 15 minutes of Cavalleria Rusticana. Rosa Raisa sings the leading role in the latter. Other notables who will be heard are Hilda Burke, Charles Marshall, Antonio Cortis and Maria Claessens.

Sandy MacFarlane, the happy chimney builder and Scotch comedian, brings a guest artist with him on his weekly WBZA feature heard at 7:30 p. m. Ernest A. L. Hill, local newspaper man for more than 40 years, will divulge some secrets of the Fourth Estate. Sandy will offer four Scotch songs.

If you can possibly find something else to do, don't tune in on WBZA at 5 today. The world's worst radio program will be heard at that time when someone named Bill Whipple annoys the mike. Play the gramaphone, solitaire or backgammon, but don't tune in on this worthless program. Our only regret is that the two kids that are with Bill have to be included in this message; they are deserving of a better fate.

RADIO Personalities

Bostonians will be glad to hear that CHET FROST, a local boy who made good with the CBS production staff, will return to the air with his "Original Bostonians," after being separated from them for four years. The orchestra makes its debut over the CBS network on WCAP, Asbury Park, Dec. 29. . . . HARRIET LEE and MARION McAFEE have known each other for a year and have done CBS program work together, yet it was not until the other day they discovered they were cousins. . . . "The Lady With the Corsage" is the phrase identified with KATHLEEN STEWART, NBC pianist. She always totes a bouquet composed either of orchids or lilies of the valley. . . . A high school in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has named their current history club for LOWELL THOMAS. . . . When SMITH BALLEW was at the Club Richman in N. Y. radio brought him to our parlors. TED LEWIS is carrying on at that night club this season, but as yet the air waves haven't captured him. Incidentally Ted is enjoying an imitation vogue. Among those who are portraying the high-hatted tragedian of jazz are Hal Skelly, Norma Terris, Jack White and Venita Gould.

Grace Glad to Leave Ship in France

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend. He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but "he has a rare smile." Wilda's father dies and her mother, Gracie, becomes a different woman when the lawyers say the estate will amount to $100,000. She plans a trip to [illegible] Wilda has a wonderful time at a house party where Logan asks her to marry him. Myrtle, who is determined to win Logan, turns up at the dock as Wilda boards steamer for Europe. Logan's leave-taking is affectionate. Gracie finds an admirer on board who later shocks her by saying he is married.

By MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1930.)

BOARDSHIP FLIRTATIONS . . . she had read of them. She'd read that ships were the happy hunting-ground of married rotters.

He'd thought, no doubt, to have a game with her. Such doggoned impudence.

It was fear of a paroxysm, then and there, that had forced her to rush ahead of him to her cabin and slam the door in his face and lock it without one good night syllable.

But, apart from mal-de-mer, she was glad she'd snubbed Mr. Oscar Glyn.

Just let him think her rude. Just let him think—oh, ah!—the ship was rising and falling now like an express elevator.

Awful Sinking

Ship Like a Corkscrew

And half-way up, and half-way down it did a terrible corkscrew!

The woodwork groaned and squeaked, and Gracie groaned in unison.

Down! Down! Down!

That awful sinking feeling at the pit of one's stomach!

An ominous pause. For a moment the cabin was stationary.

Then up—up—up! Spirally!

Br-r-r-r! Was that the propeller or the screw that had risen out of the water?

Ugh! Horrible vibration! From stem to stern—she knew the meaning of that term by now—the whole vessel shivered.

And the woodwork creaked again, with a thousand little squeaks like animals.

Hark! Listen! Weren't those human groans in the next cabin?

Not that she cared a jot! Let everybody suffer!

Down, down again—then a halt halfway—and then suddenly up, up, up with a corkscrew motion.

Came a sound of someone near at hand being seized with a paroxysm.

She shuddered. Ah! Disgusting!

If Wilda were the least bit filial, she would surely have come in search of her mother . . .

Wilda had yachted on Long Island Sound and up at Nantucket. Wilda was a good sailor.

As the ship rose and fell and groaned and rolled Grace groaned in bitterness of spirit.

Why, in heaven's name, had they ever come on this accursed voyage?

Crockery Crashes

Why Did She Go?

To give Wilda a decent chance [illegible] life! To drag her away from that ordinary Logan Townsend!

Crash! Bang! Came the sound of smashed crockery from a steward's pantry

Let every dish on the boat be smashed she didn't care. She'd never touch food again. The very thought of it made her ten times more nauseated.

Feet were heard hurrying down the passage. Others, feeling as he did, sought quick retreat before the upheaval of the Atlantic.

Between noisy seasick yoops a child was yelling. And in the cabin on the left a man was apparently trying to reassure his wife, who was giving vent to hysterical hiccups.

It was too much. To be hurled into pandemonium like this after paying out one's good money . . .

The cabin door flew open with a bang, and in the aperture stood Wilda. She was smiling, radiant. She held in her hand an open paper.

"From Logan. I just got it.

'BARON'S' BRIDE IN BRAIN TEST

Barbara Buffum Bramwell, principal in Oxford's "knighthood" wedding that resulted in her incarceration in the Worcester State Hospital, submitted herself to mental tests today, confident that she would be released.

As Dr. William A. Bryan, superintendent of the hospital, carried in the little blocks, the rubber hammer and the several pages of tricky questions which are used to determine one's sanity, Barbara was placing her hope for release on two important factors.

The first was her husband. The second, was the fact that she had passed the same test before and had been dismissed from the same institution because she was sane.

CAN HAVE HER IF—

Dr. Bryan today reiterated his assertions that if "Sir" William Bramwell, the bridegroom, returned for his bride that he can have her, providing he proves the marriage legal.

Only the girl's father, James Buffum Webster banker, and her brother, Warren, who assisted in taking Barbara to the hospital as she screamed and kicked, were at the family home in Oxford today.

Mrs. Buffum, with another daughter, left Oxford three days ago and has not returned. The girl's charges that her mother perpetrated the hoax that eventually landed her in the asylum are reported to have had a serious effect on Mrs. Buffum.

CHECKS ARE PAID

In the sun parlor of the house were piled large boxes and crates which had held the gifts to the bride. The gifts, reported to have been valued in excess of $3500, have been stored in the attic.

Checks used by the bride to purchase wedding finery for herself and "Sir" William, were still being presented to the girl's father today. A clerk in a Worcester bank went to Webster and collected on a $15 check which the girl passed in Boston. According to officials of the bank, James Buffman paid without comment.

EXTRA POLICE ON DUTY FOR DAY

Army of Shoppers Roll Into City by Train, Trolley and Auto

The Saturday before Christmas—and uncountable thousands thronged the downtown shopping district.

Police were prepared to handle upwards of 300,000 in the main shopping area, for the mild weather on the biggest buying day of the year was bringing out a huge crowd.

Steam trains and electrics bound toward the city were filled with women shoppers and youngsters bent on seeing everything in the stores.

With the experience gained last week in handling big crowds on Washington st. in conjunction with the new traffic lights, Supt. Michael H. Crowley was confident things would run with perfect smoothness today.

At all the important intersections, extra officers were stationed to enforce co-operation between pedestrians and lights, if possible, but above all to assist the shopping crowds to circulate swiftly and safely.

Four officers were on duty at the Summer-Winter-Washington st. intersection, where many thousands crossed the streets every hour.

Stores reported a real Christmas business, apparently unaffected by depression—a real, old-fashioned Saturday-before-Christmas buying.

The weather man promised fair weather all day, although perhaps with some cloudiness toward evening, and predicted that the mildness would last until tomorrow, when it will probably be a little colder.

YULE PARTIES TO AID POOR

Hundreds of children, carrying toys, vegetables, canned goods, clothing and other gifts for the poor, were admitted free to the Metropolitan Theater this morning to witness a special performance arranged by the theater management in co-operation with the Salvation Army.

Salvation Army workers in uniform stood at the doors and collected the gifts in lieu of tickets. Later the presents were loaded on trucks for distribution to needy families.

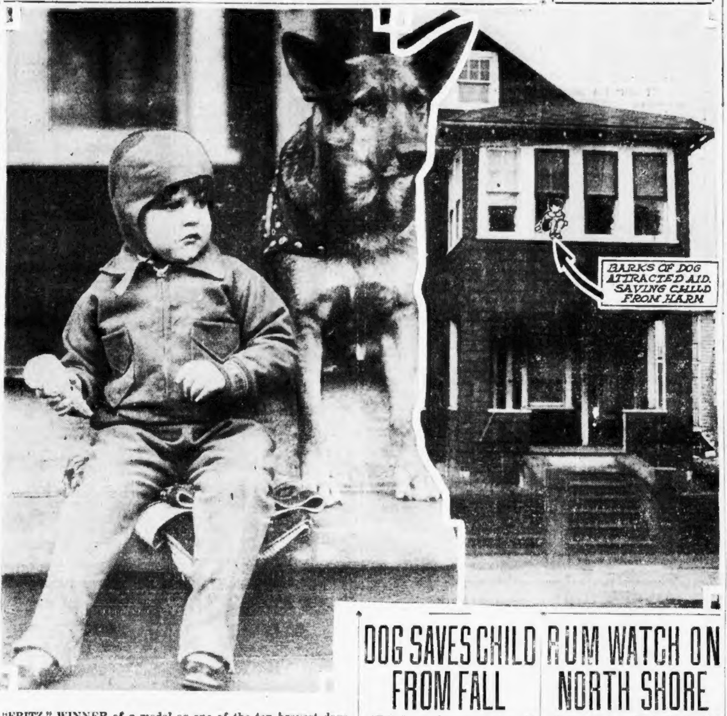
Another Christmas party was held at the Peabody House, Charles st., where crippled children from various hospitals participated in the entertainment.

A group of Camp Fire Girls under the guidance of Miss Evelyn Langford of Gordon College of Theology and Missions, gave a Christmas party to needy children at the Camp Fire House, 324 Commonwealth ave.

The Camp Fire Girls have made hundreds of dolls and other gifts for poor children, to be distributed through the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and at hospitals, and are also filling baskets of food and rehearsing for carol singing at the hospitals.

The Central Sq. theater, Waltham, also had a children's show, similar to that at the Metropolitan, and throughout Greater Boston other Christmas benefits and festivities were taking place.

Hero Dog Saves Malden Child



BARKS OF DOG ATTRACTED AID, SAVING CHILD FROM HARM

"FRITZ," WINNER of a medal as one of the ten bravest dogs in the country, stepped to the front of the canine world as a hero again yesterday when he led Mrs. Gertrude Parmenter to the second floor of her Durso ave., Malden, home, to pull her three-year-old granddaughter, Gertrude Mahoney, from a window sill where she had crawled. "Fritz," who won a medal for saving his 14-year-old master, Michael Lapore, is shown at the left with little Gertrude Mahoney. The diagram at the right shows how the child perched on the window sill. $50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned into the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

DOG SAVES CHILD FROM FALL

"Fritz," owned by Mrs. Joseph La Pore of 18 Durso ave., Malden, shares with nine other dogs the honor of being the bravest in all the United States. He has a medal and citation, awarded last summer, to prove that.

And nowe he merits honors for quick-thinking, too.

Romping about in front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Mahoney, neighbors of the La Pore family, he saw three-year-old Gertrude Mahoney sitting on the sill of a window on the second floor and unable to draw herself back to safety.

"Fritz" barked loudly and attracted Mrs. LePore, who opened the door of the Mahoney house to give the alarm. But the dog bounded past her to the kitchen where Mrs. Gertrude Parmenter, the child's grandmother, was working, and led her to the front of the house in time to save the baby.

Only a few days ago Fritz saved the same child from an automobile, seizing her dress in his teeth and pulling her from the path of the machine. His citation for bravery was for rescuing Michael La Pore, 14, from drowning.

300 Sail for West Indies on New Ship

With 300 passengers booked to sail from Boston, the new Prince Robert docks at Commonwealth Pier, today, to sail for Bermuda Jamaica, Kingston and Havana, opening the West Indies cruises of the Canadian National Steamship Co. Subsequent sailings from this port will be January 10 and January 31.

RUM WATCH ON NORTH SHORE

Determined to block the landing of liquor from ships at points along the North Shore, prohibition and coast guard forces are on guard at points along the water front in East Boston, Winthrop, Revere, Lynn and Marblehead, it was learned today.

Code messages from ships outside the two-mile limit of Boston harbor are reported to have been intercepted by Federal agents. Watch is being kept on members of a "Boston rum ring," said to be interested in supplying "speakeasies" in Chelsea, Revere and other places with rum for the Christmas trade.

The move to place the rum guard was taken after coast guardsmen had scattered a band of rum runners who had boldly attempted to salvage a dumped cargo from the waters behind the McElwain summer estate, in Cohasset.

The load, which had been dumped a few days ago, had been partially salvaged by the rum runners when they were discovered by police, who notified the coast guard officers at Scituate. All of the salvagers escaped. The load was taken to Boston.

Clerk Held in $6000 for $70 Mail Theft

Pleading not guilty to larceny of a letter containing a check for $70.58 from the mails, George F. Black, Jr., of Jamaica Plain, postal clerk in one of the Boston stations, was held in $6000 bail for the grand jury today by U. S. Commissioner Jenney. The letter was addressed to J. F. Neal, at Laconia, N. H., according to the federal authorities.

CARTRIDGE FOUND BY GUIFFRE PICKED

Expert Is on Stand for Two Hours; the Trial Is Adjourned Until Monday

Capt. Charles A. Van Amburgh, State firearms expert, today identified an exploded cartridge found in the pocket of a coat alleged to have been worn by Carmello Guiffre as one which had been fired from the .25-caliber automatic the State contends was used in the murder of Morris Lerner.

Capt. Van Amburgh in his identification testified:

> "No other gun in the world could have fired that shell than the one which is here and marked as an exhibit in this case."

Capt. Van Amburgh also said that from his examination of the bullet hole in the vest of the murder victim that it was his opinion that it was fired from a gun held less than an inch from Lerner's body.

For more than two hours today the firearm expert described in detail the appearance of the clubhouse after the shooting affray. He said that he had examined at least a half dozen bullet holes in the walls, doors, ceilings and windows of the clubhouse.

He picked up a half dozen bullets which had been fired during the gun battle on the night of August 15, the captain declared.

At one o'clock Judge Daniel T. O'Connell suspended the trial until Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Nine Lottery Cases Continued to Dec. 24

Cases of eight men and a woman, arrested yesterday in a lottery raid by Cambridge police, were continued until Dec. 24 by Judge Arthur P. Stone in Middlesex District court today. Leo F. Pierce, 50, a printer, living at the scene of the raid on Brookline st., is charged with advertising, setting up and promoting a lottery. The woman, Margaret Carroll, 30, of Roachdale st., Roxbury, is charged with possession of gaming implements.

Others arrested were John P. Fellows, 57, of Washington st., Stoughton; Charles MacGregor, 48, of Boylston st.; Fred W. Bennett, 37, of Amory pl., Cambridge; William E. Newell, 65, of Tremont st., Boston and John P. Sullivan, 35, of Longfellow st., Dorchester.

4 Off Burned Boat Held as Runners

Charged with conspiracy to smuggle liquor on the Massachusetts coast, four men, arrested yesterday by coast guards aboard the speedboat Albertina in Buzzards Bay, were held in $5000 bail each today by U. S. Commissioner Jenney. They are Joseph A. Healy, North Westport; George Houligny, North [illegible]; Albert Beggs, Westport, and William Kaphzen of Westport. All pleaded not guilty. According to Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert C. Thompson, another serious charge will be placed against them. Just after they were taken off the Albertina, a 41-foot craft, the boat burst into flames and burned.

Diphtheria Loses Old Terrors

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

Dr. Copeland

RECENTLY, the Diphtheria Commission of the Department of Health of New York City issued an uncomfortable statement that diphtheria will probably be more prevalent this winter

This warning should be sufficient to prevent such a calamity. Diphtheria is a terrible disease, as anyone who has come in contact with it can bear witness. But it is preventable, and there is no reason why every child should not be protected against it

Although diphtheria is extremely contagious, some people will never take it. They are safe, no matter how often they may be exposed. Such persons are said to be "immune." This immunity increases with age, so that only a small proportion of the adult population is in danger of contagion.

But with small children the case is different. Very few of them are naturally immune, but fortunately all of them can be made so. The risk of infection is so great, and the consequences so serious, that every child should be tested to find out whether he is susceptible. If he is, he should be given the treatment necessary to overcome the condition.

The procedure for finding out whether there is immunity is simple. It is known as the "Shick test," and consists of injecting into the outer layer of the skin a tiny drop of toxin.

If there is no reaction, the person is immune But if the spot turns red and stays red for a week or so, looking rather like a mosquito bite, it means that the person is not immune In that event he should be given injections of toxin-antitoxin to create immunity

The toxin-antitoxin treatment is easy and harmless. Three injections are given, a week apart, and within six months complete immunity develops. There are no serious after-effects to be feared—no excuse why any child should not be treated

Sometimes the immunizing injections are given at once In this case, the preliminary Schick test is avoided

The toxin-antitoxin treatment in diphtheria was one of the great achievements of modern medicine. By its use the toll of the disease was cut down to one-third of the former figure Its universal use would within a few years wipe out diphtheria entirely.

WHEN ALL THE WORLD IS KIN

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

THIS YEAR of Nineteen-thirty . . . almost gone; with the other years of almost two thousand Christmases, there was writing on the wall. And the writer was Noel, jolly old King Christmas of the unfashionable figure, the furs, the scarlet velvet, the eyebrows and beard of snow And high up where all could see he wrote a law, a LAW for Christmas Nineteen-thirty; and it said

"EVERYONE MUST GIVE TO EVERYONE ELSE."

Maybe you don't think that when a hard-eyed young man with a camel-hair, snap-brim hat and a nipped-in double-breaster slips a five-dollar bill in the Salvation Army lassie's tambourine after the movie . . . with a shamed and cautious look . . . that it is brotherly love! But it is; it's only one more Christmas fire lighted Some of us didn't know what happened to us when we HAD to give this year and some of us knew very well We read the writing on the wall . an anaemic imagination took fire from a Christmas candle a crippled heart walked again, deaf ears heard Christmas bells shaking out silver, and we remembered the old song from the French:

"WHO BY THE FIRESIDE STANDS
STAMPS HIS FEET AND SINGS,
BUT HE WHO BLOWS HIS HANDS
NOT SO GAY A CAROL BRINGS!"

Christmas has survived cynicism, has flaunted its fires and its bells and trees in the face of modern unemotionalism, has played its Christmas carol on a music box in a jazz world, and this year it waved the very ancient flower of Christmas sentiment which says that good things spring to the hand that gives on Christmastide! And a worldly world stopped and read the legend. The worldly world was depressed some itself; it was gift-shopping frayed; Christmas had become a bore, and it never thought of the little Child who is EVERY LITTLE POOR CHILD IN THE WORLD, who is supposed to wander Christmas Eve night through the dark and snow, looking for the candle in the window and the open door and warm heart. But the legend was so bright that it lighted a Christmas fire in the world's tense heart, and behold! . . . it walked right out and gave to the "Christmas Fund" slipped something to a Salvation lassie while it hummed "Silent Night, Holy Night," loaded a basket for its little boy to help swell his school's quota suffering an acute softening of the heart when it saw how PROUD THE LITTLE BOY WAS TO GIVE found a job that could be given, bought some more presents, and gave away last year's overcoat! The world that is stone hard to many another old-fashioned tender sentiment could not resist the oldest of all sentiments—Christmas Giving. You, and you, and you, and I, all of us, fell into the procession. King Christmas' happy mob—the crowd which gave to some one else.

It isn't Saint Nick's private sack this year and it doesn't hold toys alone. It's as big as a piece of circus tent, and LOVE helps carry it. And the whole country helped fill it. Well-off Mimi tossed in expensive toys and ten Christmas dinners. Down-pretty-close Mamie put in a mended toy and some home-made jelly. And Ol' Christmas grinned at them both with exactly the same degree of warmth and the same candle power of twinkle to the eye. 'Fill it up,' cried he, "little and big. More, more'

And they say it is a huge success. They say the sack went magic to hold the marvel of bounty that flowed into it! The red Christmas rose bloomed in the snow We hope it bloomed for every little child in this country.

Old persons and middle-old ones need happiness and food on Christmas Day . . . but the little Child seems the beginning and the end of Christmas The ancient Irish and the Hungarians put lighted candles in their windows, spread food and left an open door for the wandering feet of the Christ Child on Christmas Eve

That wandering little Child is only every and any little child, and the one who made a little child happy this Christmas lighted a candle and left an open door to Him.

BROKEN RAINBOWS—By May Christy

Isn't radio a marvelous invention?"

Gracie gave an exasperated groan.

"Come in and shut that door. Can't you see I'm suffering?"

"Why, mother, what's the matter? Why did you steal away to bed? I thought you were with Mr. Glyn out on the decks looking at the ocean. It's a grand sight now——"

"It's horrible'" Gracie gave a violent shudder

"Why, mother, surely you aren't seasick?"

"I certainly am! And how! I feel just like I'm dying."

"Then you ought to be on deck instead of smothering down here in this stuffy cabin."

No reply. Wilda put out a hand against the wardrobe to steady herself

"Wouldn't you like a cup of strong, black coffee, Gracie darling?"

"No. Go away Can't you see I'm suffering?"

"Shall I get the doctor for you?"

"No. What could he do? Can he control the ocean?"

"There's no need to be really afraid even if it gets rougher,' counseled Wilda, "because this is one of the steadiest and best-built ships on the Atlantic."

Widow Groaned
She Hated All Ships

Her mother only shut her eyes and groaned. She hated ships . . hated everything to do with them.

They landed at Cherbourg on a delightful summer day. The sun shone on the pretty French landscape.

And all was bustle as the boat-train made ready for its departure to Paris.

"What absurd little coaches!" Grace Gardner was herself again after her spell of seasickness. Wilda and she were both in beige traveling costumes.

Because one of the passengers (who was going on with the boat to England) had mistaken them for sisters when bidding farewell today, Grace had been thoroughly delighted.

A woman was "only as old as she looked"—not so? She had a top-of-the-world, almost a juvenile feeling this morning.

Forgotten was her disillusion over Mr. Oscar Glyn. There were as good fish in the sea as ever came out of it!

They climbed into a high, narrow little coach and lowered the window.

From the platform came a babel of French tongues. A fat old woman—rosy-cheeked, with the inevitable black overall—offered them oranges from an enormous basket

"Why, Gracie, aren't they cheap! Two for a cent?"

'Now, Wilda, you aren't going to disgrace our first-class tickets and our clothes by munching oranges!"

"No. But look—she's got wine, too. Only six cents a bottle."

"I'll surely be poison

"Why, no! You're in France now, mother!"

Train Starts
In Bustle of Gaiety

On the platform all was gaiety and confusion. There were travelers' agents, showing people to their seats . . . blue-bloused French porters gesticulating madly.

But everybody got in at last and the train started

Little boys in alpaca aprons raced along by the side of the moving coaches, wanting pennies. They were delighted with even the most trifling coins (and coins in France are minted as low as the fifth part of one cent) that were flung down into their grubby little palms by passengers.

The train flew on. They passed through a lovely undulating landscape Green it was, the meadows flower-dotted

And there were streams where patient anglers fished under the high hot sun of noontime

Old chateaux galore set on quiet hillsides. Quaint little miniature, red-tiled farmhouses. And black-bloused workmen, pedaling home for their lunch on bicycles.

"We're in Normandy. The farms don't seem scarcely bigger than a pocket handkerchief!" exclaimed Wilda.

"What state are we in?" inquired Gracie

"We're in Normandy They don't use the word 'state' over here mother"

"Humph! It's a perfectly good word." Now that the Atlantic lay between them, Gracie felt a strong pro-Americanism.

She was thrilled to be here, of course, skimming over the soil of France in a first-class "de luxe" carriage.

And, of course, she simply couldn't wait to get to Paris'

But she wasn't going to hand those "frogs" anything . . . not until they'd proved themselves, anyway . . .

"Oh, mother, look' Isn't it too lovely?"

"I've seen just as pretty bits round Philadelphia and up in Westchester."

"But it's so different' We're in a foreign country'"

As though to prove this obvious statement, along came an attendant ringing a bell and yelling in French that "first luncheon" was ready

"I forgot to get the tickets," said Wilda remorsefully. "The restaurant seats will be booked to the limit"

She asked the man for coupons in uncertain French. Smiled winningly up at him.

That was enough. He was Latin and she had such pretty eyes The "beaux yeux" did it.

Gracie and she followed that noisy bell along the rocking corridors . . . "for all the world like hungry rats after the Pied Piper!" laughed Wilda.

Experiences of Wilda and Gracie in Paris are interestingly told in Monday's installment.

Better Refuse a Date Now and Then

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems Address her [illegible] the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are two girls 17 years old and quite recently have been meeting some nice boys at our other girl friend's house These boys mean nothing to us and we think that they never shall. Now here is our problem: Because of them we seem to be retarded in meeting other boys. Our other girl friends say that there is no harm in seeing them as we do, which is sometimes two or three times a week. Although we do enjoy ourselves with them, we don't think this is right. We seem to think that it is getting us nowhere except to give the boys the impression that they are the only ones we know, which is far from the truth. Please advise us whether you think it best to stop seeing them, even though there is no parental objections, or to continue seeing them?

MAIDENS IN DISTRESS

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Maidens in Distress—There is no known law which can compel you to go steadily with boys you are not interested in. If you think your apparent interest in them is hurting your chances with other boys, why not refuse a date now and then? Three times a week is quite frequent, it seems to me, for purely casual friendships. There are many young ladies engaged to their men who do not see them as often as that.

Short Cuts in Making Christmas Puddings

Martha Lee

[illegible] AS Thanksgiving seems [illegible] time for squash and mince [illegible] so Christmas is Pudding Time and the prince of puddings is, of course, the plum variety, with its raisin and citron contents and flavorful sauces

The woman who wishes to save herself an endless amount of labor will probably purchase her Christmas pudding in a convenient tin container or in a beautiful blue bowl imported from England These come in different sizes convenient for any family and are truly delicious properly steamed and served with a creamy hard sauce

Then there's the woman who wants a lighter pudding and for her we suggest this Fairy Plum Pudding

FAIRY PLUM PUDDING

Soak 1½ tbsps gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Melt 2 squares sweet chocolate in a double boiler, add half of a third cup of sugar and stir to a paste. Add rest of sugar and the gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add 1½ cups scalded evaporated milk, 3 tbsps. syrup from stuffed oranges and let mixture stand till it begins to set. Then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs, 1 c. chopped stuffed orange (about 1½ oranges) and ⅓ cup of chopped walnuts Turn into small molds wet with cold water and set away to chill. Turn out and garnish with whipped cream and red and green cherries. Serves 8

And from Merry Old England comes this honest-to-goodness old-time recipe for Christmas Plum Pudding, with a gorgeous sauce

Retailer Can't Get Supplies; Significant?

Government Should Create Revolving Fund to Spur Building

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York, Dec. 20—"I cannot get an order filled with any kind of merchandise except after unusually long delay."

This writes Frank Riese, watchmaker, jeweler and radio supplies merchant of Bloomington, Wisconsin. He adds:

B. C. Forbes

"Other merchants along the street are in the same fix and have come to the conclusion that manufacturers have laid off men and have nothing on hand at all but a catalog, figuring on getting an order first and then making it up some way. Looks to me that the safety first idea is carried to extremes. Everyone seems to be out of what you want. I have come to the conclusion that very few of them have anything. Business is not so good that stocks are depleted from the heavy buying. My experience and my neighbors' is that we just can't get anything."

Does this condition rule in many parts of the country? If it does we may witness a very sharp increase in manufacturing almost any day. I know that New York shoppers have repeatedly complained about the meagerness of stocks. You cannot sell goods you have not got. Trying to sell from samples will kill any merchant's trade.

This is encouraging: Martin L. [illegible], president of the Tree Expert Company of Kent, Ohio, [illegible] that notwithstanding the tendency this year to postpone spending [illegible] tree surgery [illegible] advertising and [illegible] the [illegible] has been [illegible] ahead of last [illegible] time.

"We are well satisfied with the outcome, inasmuch as no employe has been dropped and our regular dividends have been paid," says Mr. Davey, "although net income will not quite equal last year's. We believe that the worst is over and we are prepared to go ahead under full steam next year."

Charles Piez, head of the [illegible] known Link Belt Company, [illegible] substantial decrease [illegible] company. [illegible] Mr. Piez feels that [illegible]:

"There is no sign of an improvement on the horizon and in our opinion improvement in our line will not begin until several months of the new year have elapsed."

President H. A. Scandrett, of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, commenting [illegible] writes, says:

"I believe, with you, that there is now a wonderful opportunity for the investor who acts with courage and discrimination. He may not buy at the very bottom—few, if any, are able to do this—but he will buy at bargain prices. It would seem to follow from this that now is the time for industry in general to be preparing for the better days which are surely ahead of us."

President Paul W. [illegible] of Gen[illegible] [illegible]

"But we look forward to a splendid year in 1931, as general conditions, we feel, will turn. There is a lot of stored up business for our industry that we feel is bound to break in the early part of next year."

Britton I. Budd, outstanding Chicago business man, offers this [illegible] interesting suggestion:

"The economic conditions of the country as a whole do not justify the present all-pervading forebodings and miasma of fear.

"If the Government could create a revolving fund for home building on a fifteen-year payment plan, under proper administration, it would not only help materially the recovery of business but it would cost the taxpayer nothing. The charge for financing would more than take care of the interest on the money invested."

Ralph W. Smith, vice president of the National Surety Co., decrying the fact that "all courage and optimism seem to have left the American people," remarks:

"I cannot help believing, however, that we are not really going into the 'sewer,' but that, on the contrary, the United States will still retain a place on the map of the world."

Bond Prices Are Again Held Firm

New York, Dec. 20—The firm tone of bond prices was maintained for the third successive session today although some selling developed in second grade rails, that have shown a tendency to follow the trend of shares.

NEW ENGLAND WINTER MECCA FOR TOURISTS

By FRANK H. MELOON

New England was boomed as a summer resort when a good many people thought the summer tourist business would never amount to much. The same type of keen visioned people are now booming this district as a Mecca for winter tourists. The Boston & Maine Railroad, for example, today points out that there has been a 600 per cent increase in the past eight years in the number of New England hotels and inns making special provisions for winter sports. The railroad leaders do not attempt to enumerate the percentage of increase in roadside cabins, some of them good-sized villages, which stay open in the winter as well as in the summer. In one state alone more than $5,000,000 is now invested in cabins of this type.

* * *

Some of the so-called cabins are furnished as completely as the quarters in many hotels and inns. The trend in these cabins is constantly toward refinement and amplification of accommodations. The good ones are by no means to be confused with the little cut-rate structures thrown up here and there along the highways. Many hotels in New England are adopting the cabin idea for use in building annexes.

Dr. Julius Klein, former Harvard instructor, now assistant secretary of commerce, who has been investigating conditions in the Balkans and the Near East, is due home within a few days. Dr. Klein, whose official residence is still in Cambridge, has a wide American audience, which will soon hear him anew in weekly talks over one of the major chains. He has built up a wide reputation as a writer on financial and business topics and is besides in constant demand as a speaker before public gatherings.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

An important announcement was made today by a leading New York Stock Exchange house. These brokers announce acceptance of marginal orders for stocks selling for $7 and more. This is believed to be the first time that a New York Stock Exchange member has accepted marginal orders on stocks selling under $10. Minimum margin required is $1 a share. Large number of issues selling below $10 influenced the decision.

Manhattan Issue Among Favorites

Although Manhattan modified has reacted from its high established when it was reported that a unification plan had been agreed upon, the issue is one of the outstanding favorites among the tractions. During the past six months of active selling this stock has held remarkably well. A settlement of the unification proposal probably would find the issue in active demand. Many rumors have been heard as to the value of Manhattan modified if an agreement is reached, but there has been nothing from official quarters on the matter.

Coppers Take First Turn Up

The coppers turned upward today for the first time this week, on the firmer market for the red metal around ten cents a pound.

Food and Soft Drink Issues in Comeback

Stocks of the food companies and soft drink concerns, which have been battered around the board in the last few days, staged a mild comeback today, principally at the expense of the shorts.

UTILITIES IN LATE RALLY IN WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 20—Public utility shares [illegible] today [illegible] market [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the last [illegible] to reduce their [illegible] [illegible] prices.

RAILS "MOST SOLD"

Railroads were the "most sold" group [illegible] final period at about the lowest levels of the short sessions, yet still substantially above the low levels of the spectacular week.

The market made substantial headway during the first hour, but wavered toward the close, when assorted gains and losses, mostly narrow, prevailed.

The utilities having been largely neglected in yesterday's advance, operators for the advance were able to bring them forward as reserves. Total sales aggregated 1,025,000 shares.

American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light, North American, American Water Works, Cerro de Pasco and International Business Machines gained about a point.

Johns Manville, Hudson and Worthington closed up about 2. Missouri Pacific common was an isolated firm spot in the rails, gaining 3½. Atchison lost 4, New York Central 3 and New Haven, Southern Railway, United Fruit and Auburn about 2 points.

U. S. Steel and Westinghouse were fractionally lower and General Electric steady.

AUTO DEMANDS

The report of next week's schedule of steel mill operations in the Youngstown area indicated that aggregate output would be sharply curtailed, owing largely to the holiday.

While some plants are slowing up for year-end inventories, sheet manufacturers are getting increasing business from the automobile trade. Newton Steel is increasing its output from 50 to 60 per cent of capacity.

The weekly mercantile reports showed little change in the trend of holiday trade. The volume of goods moved in some centers compares favorably with a year ago. Price reductions have been an important stimulus. It is notable that the winter catalog of one of the leading mail order houses shows price reductions ranging in the main from 6 to 18 per cent. Retail stores, issuing no catalogs, have in many cases anticipated the markdowns.

There was again scattered pressure against the grain markets. The further drop in commodity prices has caused some further discouragement, but the Annalist points out that a fresh decline in commodities is a characteristic of the ending of a period of depression.

McGraw Hill's "Business Week," however, says it is being recognized that it is not quite necessary to have a second flood of liquidation to [illegible] out the economic sins of the new era.

NEW DIVIDENDS ARE DECLARED

Newton Steel Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the preferred, payable January 31.

Pittsburgh Steel Foundries Co. declared extra dividend of 12½ cents and regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable January 15. In previous quarter an extra of 25 cents was paid.

Distributors Group, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable January 1. This places the stock on a $1 annual [illegible] against 50 cents previously.

Canadian Bronze Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the common and $1.75 on preferred, payable February 1.

Canadian Westinghouse Co. Ltd. declared extra dividend of $1, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, both payable January 1.

North American Light & Power Co. declared regular quarterly dividends of 2 per cent in common on the common, payable February 16.

United Cigar Votes Preferred Dividend

Directors of the United Cigar Stores Company voted a dividend of $6 a share on the preferred stock for the year 1931, to be paid in quarterly instalments of $1.50 each, the first payment due on February 1, 1931.

No dividends have been paid on the preferred stock since August 21, 1929, and the distribution of $6 a share for 1931 is a partial payment on accruals on the preferred, which now amount to about $7.50 a share.

Cash Register to Pay Full Dividends

New York, Dec. 20—National Cash Register Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the Class A, payable Jan. 15. Dividend of $1.50 was declared for the year on the class "B" stock, payable Jan. 3. Cash Register estimates earnings for fourth quarter will be approximately $1,500,000. This more than covers the quarter's dividend on the class "A" stock and the class "B" dividend declared.

Rubber Is Steady

New York, Dec. 20—Rubber futures today were steady. Dec. 8.30, March 8.50, May 8.70. New contracts: Dec. and March unquoted; May 8.80.

Namm Doubts If Kelly Bill Will Abolish Price Fixing

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—[illegible]ton of leading retailers Benjamin H. Namm, president of the Namm store, Brooklyn, New York, and chairman of the National Retail [illegible] Goods Association's Committee on Price Legislation, gave an address on "Price Fixing As Seen by an Independent Merchant." He said:

"Congressman Kelly, author of the bill, told the druggists of America recently that his measure would end predatory price cutting. Such is not the case.

"The Kelly bill may have been written with the laudable purpose of curbing predatory price cutting. But it fails of accomplishing that purpose. It will merely curb legitimate price reductions which are essential to business for two reasons: to liquidate frozen inventories and to reflect differences in the costs of doing business.

"The bill merely legalizes price agreements between manufacturers and retailers. It does not prevent chain stores, or independent merchants either, from cutting "fixed" prices to the bone by the simple expedient of buying these branded articles from wholesalers, jobbers or people other than the manufacturer.

"The real, dyed in the wool predatory price cutter may even benefit by the passage of this bill. The reason for this is obvious. The average merchant will never go to the trouble or expense of buying this branded goods from a secondary source of supply.

"Whereas, the predatory fellow will do just that. He will even buy this merchandise at retail, if necessary, hoping thereby to create the false impression that his entire stock is correspondingly cheap. It is one thing to pass a law and another to enforce it."

BRUINS BATTLE RANGERS AT GARDEN

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1930

FANNING WITH George Underwood

Beattie and Jerwa Are Sparkplugs for Bruins and Rangers ↕ Rookies Help Both Teams Strike Gait Patrick, Silver Fox

Hockey Southpaws Outnumber Righthanders

Water seeks its proper level and so do hockey teams. A her quarter post is reached in the Ice Derby, the Bruins an angers are edging nearer to each other, and the Chicago B awks, who have been setting the pace all season, are slack their hold. Both Bruins and Rangers were "off" in the firs of the race, the Bruins decidedly so, but injection of new bloo put Boston and New York back into the pennant hunt. The Springfield rookies, Jack "Red" Beattie and Joe Jerwa, who this season this paper emphasized belonged in faster company, given the Ross and Patrick outfits new life. Another player deserves another chance in the Big Show is Leo Gaudreault o Providence Reds. Under the right manager Leo would shine star of the first magnitude.

Geo. Underwood

Beattie apparently has remade the Bruins. All season Boston lacked a spark plug at center. Cooney Weiland has been off his play. He not only hasn't shooting and passing in his old-time form, but conditions or something, [illegible] to [illegible] those dashing sorties with which he used to harass the opposing defense last year. Beattie has given the Bruins the "threat" they lacked at center ice this year.

The former Springfield youngster is shooting and passing superbly. The smooth, gentle passes he slides along the ice are ideal for a mate to take and drive at goal. He is showing dazzling individual brilliancy and is working more and more into Ross' scheme of team play. Red's presence on the forward line should be an incentive to Weiland. Cooney knows he has to "step" to save his job.

Although Beattie and Jerwa were tickled to get in the Big Show they were sorry to be sent to different teams. The pair were together on Vancouver and were sent East to Springfield. They were inseparable pals and didn't like the idea of being in opposing lineups.

Jerwa has strengthened the Rangers as much as Beattie has helped the Bruins. The kid made a great showing in his New York debut, playing a great defensive game and drawing both Falcon defense men out of position to suddenly knive between them for a successful drive at goal. Gotham fans already are forgetting Leo Bourgault in the deal that sent him to Ottawa and brought Joe to New York.

Jerwa is of Polish extraction and comes from the mining district around Canmore, Alberta, a great nursery of minor league hockey players. Few of the miners have made the Big Show, but it is a coincidence that Jerwa's running mate on the Rangers is a former miner from Sudbury, Bill Regan.

DIT CLAPPER SHINES

Dit Clapper continues to look better with every game. The big, fast rangy fellow begins to look the best thing on the ice. Fast as a streak he is rugged enough to stand all the pounding, and he is about the most feared shooter in the league.

Does the fact that Clapper is one of the few right-hand shooters in hockey help to make him such a Nemesis of the goalies? We believe so.

[illegible] Galbraith, Shore [illegible] and Gainer of the Bruins [illegible] "southpaw" shooters. On the Rangers Butch Keeling, Bun [illegible] Frank Boucher are [illegible] Burch, Neville, Emms [illegible] Sheppard and Massecar [illegible] handers. Ottawa's champion [illegible] team were all southpaws. [illegible] Nighbors, Broadbent, Denney, George Boucher and [illegible] Cleghorn all drove from the south side. Of 45 men who reported to the N Y Americans at [illegible] this season, only four were [illegible]handers.

Clapper not only is a right hand shooter but as Myles Lane recently pointed out to us Dit also is a "cover" shooter. When down near the cage he invariably throws his left hip and shoulder in such a position that he "covers" his drive and the opposing goalie can't see at just what angle the shot is coming from Another thing which makes Clapper a most valuable asset is that like Eddie Shore he has a great "hockey head." He is a "smart" player.

HOCKEY HEADS

Early this season we sat with Lester Patrick, the Silver Fox of Hockey, watching some minor leaguers. One of the youngsters greatly impressed us. He sw up and down the ice like a str hawk. We thought he got his shots beautifully

"There's a kid who belong the Big Show, Lester," we op enthusiastically.

"Watch him awhile and I t you will change your mind," etly remarked Patrick and explained. "He hasn't a ho head, yet. With more experi he may get it. You never tell. Some of 'em never do.

"That's the difference betw major league and minor lea hockey players. I was fan with John McGraw the other and John tells me that very o is the difference between a jor league ball player and minor league player.

"Watch that kid out there the ice. He skates just as and checks just as hard as one of my stars. But look at waste movements. See how thinking his rushes and how h hazard are his shots. Looka th Looka that! Why if any of stars were guilty of that chuck 'em off the ice. The w was in a clear position for shot but that dazzling kid yours refused to pass. No hea No head!

"Yeah, many of these youngsters play as fast as the b leaguers," concluded Patric "but they don't think as fas Brains wins on the ice as well everywhere else. That's why hockey player needs seasoning. He must learn by experience. But as I said before some of 'em never do. You can't make a smart hockey player out of a dumbell."

THE SILVER FOX

To your humble columnist Lester Patrick is one of the most interesting and colorful figures hockey ever produced Like Art Ross of the Bruins Patrick is as great a manager as he was a player.

Hockey is about the most strenuous of all sports and pastimes. Yet Lester Patrick played league hockey regularly until he was 34 years of age. For four years after that he frequently broke into the game as a substitute

Even the Silver Fox himself, when he closed the 1921 season, thought he had donned the skates for the last time. Lester was 38 years of age when he bade the competitive end of the game a last farewell. Yet four years later, when he was 42, he jumped back into harness and played so well that his team got into the finals in the fight for the Stanley Cup.

Patrick then was managing the Victoria Club of the Western Hockey League. His team was going great. Suddenly old Hard Luck hit it. Three of his stars were injured within one week so seriously they were out for the rest of the season That is what made the 42-year-old Patrick jump back into fighting togs again. He went through the remainder of the season, playing 25 games and finishing second only to Eddie Shore then with Edmonton. His team beat Saskatoon for the right to play the Montreal Maroons for the Stanley Cup.

The Silver Fox himself didn't get in the Stanley Cup series that year. The week before the first game Bun Cook caught Lester with a hard swing and broke Patrick's right hand.

There is not a shrewder, finer judge of hockey players in the world, nor a more capable leader than the Silver Fox, who will lead his Rangers on the ice against the Bruins here tonight.

LESTER PATRICK "RED" BEATTIE "DIT" CLAPPER

" BEATTIE, great young rookie, is "burning up the ice" ne Bruins. The Springfield youngster has given the for- line some needed "pep." Dit Clapper is playing a sensa- l game on the wing. Lester Patrick, the Silver Fox of the ice, will lead the Rangers against the Bruins in the Garden tonight. It wasn't so long ago when Patrick was an active player and one of the very best in the pro game. And he has few superiors as a manager.

GEORGE IS DUE HERE MONDAY

Ed George, world's heavyweight wrestling champion as a result of his recent victory over Gus Sonnenberg, is on his way East for his world's title bout with Bibber McCoy, which will be staged at the Arena on Thursday night, under the direction of Paul Bowser.

George, former Michigan athlete, is the greatest college wrestler to ever smash his way into the pro ranks. He has a background which is rich in mat history. He was heavyweight wrestling champion of the Big Ten Conference, A. A. U. title holder and one of Uncle Sam's representatives at the Olympics.

George is six feet two inches tall and weighs 220 pounds. He has appeared several times in Boston rings and always made a big impression with the fans

The new champion has only lost one bout as a pro. That was his first contest with Sonnenberg in Los Angeles when both wrestlers were knocked unconscious in a head-on collision In the return bout George lifted the title

George will engage in a tune up bout at Worcester on Monday night when he will clash with Jack Wagner of Providence. He will then come to Boston to finish his training for his meeting with McCoy.

Minneapolis, Dec. 20 (INS)—"That story undoubtedly is the work of some fiction writer with a powerful imagination."

In this Knute Rockne, famous coach of the Notre Dame football team emphatically denied by long distance telephone from Rochester the story that he intended asking for a year's vacation and turning over his coaching duties to a staff of former Notre Dame greats.

"At the present time I entertain no thought of quitting my coaching duties at Notre Dame. From time to time stories of that nature have come to the public's attention, and now once and for all I want to deny the rumor. I am down here solely for a recheck of my physical condition, and after the two-week stay ere will return to Notre Dame. True enough, I will take a brief vacation, but I intend to be back with my boys at the start of the next fall gridiron campaign."

Jacobs' Row With Solons May Cost Schmeling Title

New York, Dec. 20 (AP) -Joe Jacobs is Max Schmeling's manager under a five-year contract, but he has to read the papers these days to find out what the New York State Athletic Commission wants the German heavyweight to do, and thereby hangs a tale that may cost "Der Maxie" his heavyweight crown.

On Tuesday the commission cabled Schmeling in Germany that he must agree in 15 days to defend his title against Jack Sharkey. Maxie has replied that Jacobs is his manager and fully qualified to go before the commission and talk it all over with the boxing solons.

And that's where the rub comes in. The commission and Jacobs are not on speaking terms and have not been for some months The commission does not recognize Jacobs as a manager because of his suspension in the controversy over Arthur Buelow's managerial claims on Schmeling. Jacobs has filed no managerial contract on Schmeling with the commission, which considers the German heavyweight a free agent.

Just what the next move will be no one was willing to predict, but it was considered probable that if Schmeling fails to accept Sharkey's challenge in the specified time he will lose the heavyweight title so far as the New York State Commis-

POLO TWIN BILL AT ARMORY

The Westwood and 110th Cavalry will battle it out in a Class A league contest and the 102nd Field Artillery and the Lancers will oppose each other in a Class B affair in the Boston Indoor Pony Polo League twin bill at the Commonwealth Armory tonight.

Westwood is favored to win over the Cavalry as the latter team was disappointing in losing to the 101st Field Artillery by a large score in the opening league clash. Westwood, also known as the Sharpshooters, will line up with three experienced players, John Hopewell at No 1, Dudley L. Milliken at No. 2 and Captain Frederick D Sharp, Harvard polo coach, at back The lesser-handicapped Cavalry plans to shift Lincoln Brigham to No. 2 and Captain Mangini to back in an effort to click. Captain Everett Jenkins will again play No. 1 position.

The Crusaders have available three players who won the Class B championship last year as the 51st Artillery Brigade, Colonel Roger Eckfeldt, Captain Harvey Moore nd Captain Theodore Storer. amuel Hopkins, captain of the ale intercollegiate champions of 23, has also joined this team. The ening lineup will be Eckfeldt, No. Hopkins, No. 2, and Moore, back. players will probably alter considerably.

The Bruins go after their fourth straight victory at the Garden, this evening, against the New York Rangers.

Leading the American division and leading all National League teams in points, the Rossmen are setting a clip now that is comparable to their sensational play of last winter and the feeling is general that the team has finally arrived.

Rangers, stung by that 4-2 victory the Bruins scored on New York ice on Thursday night, can be counted upon to come back tonight at top speed to reverse the decision in their first local appearance of the season

The Bruins seem to hold a great spell over the Rangers, who have been unable to win from the Boston team for two years

The game tonight, the first Saturday night home game of the season for the natives, proves doubly interesting to Boston fans because it not only brings together teams that have been bitter rivals for years, but it shows the new Boston favorite, Jack "Red" Beattie, playing his first home game against Joe Jerwa, his former teammate, who went to the Rangers in the settlement of the dispute over ownership of the former Vancouver players.

Beattie has caught on with the Bruins beautifully. In two games he has scored two goals and grabbed an assist.

Jerwa did not score against the Bruins, but his rushes always were dangerous and he was covered closely.

Beattie Off to Fine Start With Bruins

Beattie's play has fitted in nicely with that of Marty Barry and Harry Oliver. The newly org ized trio already is rated as one the great lines of hockey. Bar has been brilliant in recent games playing the greatest hockey of his career while Oliver's sharpshooting and his great scoring promises to put him in a position where he can take scoring honors from Howie Morenz and Ebbie Goodfellow, the present big goal and assist men of the league.

The Rangers have three lines, the most powerful the Frank Boucher, Bill Cook, Bunny Cook trio. Then the Rangers have Deacon Waite, the former Tiger; Paul Thompson, Eddie Rodden Murray Murdoch, Carrigan and Peters for valuable spares, not to mention Bill Regan, former Tiger defense player.

Bruins came back from New York in excellent trim for the game Harold Darragh is still in the hospital being treated for the ruptured muscle he received in the Detroit game, and as a result Dutch Gainor's treatment for varicose veins has been suspended until Darragh gets back. Dutch jumped into the lineup on Thursday night and teamed with George Owen for the first goal against the Rangers.

Owen Playing Better Than Ever Before

Owen incidentally is playing the best hockey of his Bruins career. His speed, his stick handling and his scoring promises to make him one of the stars of the National League this season. He is more popular than ever and he is one of the most colorful players in the game.

The Garden will have seats on sale today and also before the game. Additionally there will be 1500 rush seats and 2000 admissions.

The Bruins by a victory will further clinch first place in the division and improve their record to seven wins out of the last eight starts.

42 Golden Glove Bouts to Be Staged Tonight

LEADING PURE STARS ENTER ST. JOE SHOW

By JACK CONWAY

The third series of bouts in the St. Joe's T. A. Society's Golden Glove tournament will be staged at Mechanics Building tonight.

There will be 42 bouts, and to make sure that each of them will be run off before midnight, Billy Cuddy has decided to start his show at 7 p. m.

Jack Conway

There will be bouts tonight at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and in the light heavyweight division. In addition, the finals of the 135's and 160's of last week's show will also be run off.

The final matches in the Golden Glove tournament will be held at the Arena on Jan. 5.

Cuddy will be down close to the ring tonight getting a line on the ability of the different boys, as he will soon make his selections for the international bouts which he plans to stage at the Boston Garden.

International Boxing Show at Arena

"Big Jim" McLeod, who hails from Delhause University, will represent Halifax in the heavyweight division at the international ring show at the Arena on December 29. McLeod is the Maritime champion and his followers believe he is going somewhere in the heavyweight division. "Big Jim" weighs 175 pounds and is packing on weight.

Murray Ring, another heavyweight, will also come here with the Halifax team. Halifax will be represented by Tom Foley in the 147-pound division, and by Frets Cosgrove in the 126-pound class.

The Halifax boxers will test their ability against the representatives of Boston, Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia.

Roberti and Santa Are Ring Giants

Perhaps it would be wise for Eddie Mack to have the Argonne A. A.'s ring at the Arena reinforced for the 10-round bout between Roberto Roberti and Jose Santa, which he will stage on New Year's Day afternoon. Santa scales 269 pounds, Roberti 239, a total of 508 pounds. This is more than quarter of a ton.

Mack stated today that he will start his show at 3 p. m.

Zeramby and Hanlon to Weigh 138 Pounds

Contracts on file at the office of the boxing commission reveal that Jake Zeramby and Johnny Hanlon have agreed to weigh in at 138 pounds at 12 o'clock for their 10-round bout at Salem on New Year's Day afternoon. This is the same notch Jake and Johnny weighed in at for their recent torrid bout which was won by Zeramby after an uphill battle.

The going was even going into the 10th round. Zeramby won the duke by a hurricane finish.

EAGLE QUARTET SET FOR WINTER FLIGHTS

TOMMY MEAGHER BRENDON MOYNAHAN TOM DAILEY CAPT. O'BRIEN

BOSTON COLLEGE'S veteran two-mile relay team which should be one of the best in the nation this season. These four Eagles ran together a year ago and set up a remarkable record. They are Capt. Jack O'Brien, Tom Dailey, Tommy Meagher and Brendon Moynahan. Ryder will start them in the Brooklyn College games in New York on January 21.

Ryder Expects Much of B. C. Two-Mile Relay

With Capt. Jack O'Brien, Brendon Moynahan, Tom Daley and Tommy Meagher rapidly rounding into mid-season form, Coach Jack Ryder of Boston College has prospects of the finest two-mile relay team in B. C. history.

This quartet has been together for the past two years and last season set up a fine record, even though it failed to win any championships.

Now the boys are raring to go. And from the way things look at the Heights, they will have to travel fast if they wish to retain their places. In fact, several of the upcoming freshmen are already threatening to break up the two-year-old combination.

With Donald Fleet and Bob Jordan pressing the regulars hard, Ryder believes that his team will have hit its best stride by the time the Christmas holidays are over and will then be ready to sail through the long schedule.

Track has been rather "passe" at the Heights for the last few years. It seemed as though everything was working against Ryder. As soon as he got a winning combination together something happened to destroy all his hopes.

Last year, it was the same old story. At the start of the season the Eagle had one of the finest mile relays in the country. Then Woodwood and Finn, the fastest quartermilers in the college, withdrew from school.

Ryder Becoming Confident Again

This year things are a bit different and Jack is getting back his confidence. He has some great prospects in Fleet, Jordan, McCauley, Cary, and Moynahan, who constituted the nucleus of his championship yearling team last year.

With these added to his veterans, Bob Sullivan, Captain O'Brien, Tom O'Brien, Moynahan Daley, Meagher Sacco, Bernie Trumm, Downes, Coach Ryder has a bunch of tracksters who can hold their own in any company.

The one mile team is practically settled with the exception of one place. Bob Sullivan, a veteran of two years, is assured of a place as is Donald Fleet, the sophomore flash. The third position, Ryder has intimated, will go to Ed Cary another sophomore.

The athletes will work out at the Heights three times a week during the Christmas holidays which began today. Coach Ryder has ordered his boys to run on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays only, until classes re-open on January 5.

The Eagles will open their schedule five days later when Ryder will send almost the entire squad into the annual Y. M. C. A. meet held by the Boston Y. The team will engage in all in fourteen meets indoors and on the cinders.

The schedule follows:

Jan. 10—Y. M. C. A. games at Boston; 24, Brooklyn College games at New York; 31, William Prout Memorial games at Boston.

Feb. 7—Millrose games at New York; 14, B. A. A. games (N. E. A. A. U. championships), at Boston; 18, New York A. C. games at New York.

March 7—I. C. 4-A. indoor championships at New York; 17, New York K. C. games at New York.

Outdoors:

April 25-26—Penn relays at Philadelphia. May 1-2—Greater Boston meet at Harvard Stadium; 9, West Point at West Point; 13, Holy Cross at Worcester; 22-23, N. E. Intercollegiates; 29-30, I. C. 4-A. championships at Philadelphia.

B. U. TO NAME NEW GRID COACH

Boston University will not reappoint Hilary Mahaney as varsity grid coach for next season. His successor will be selected the latter part of this week, according to authentic information received today.

The Boston University athletic council held a secret meeting last Friday to settle the coaching matter, but after the session it was stated that the question was still unsettled. It is believed that the delay was due to the failure to secure Mahaney's successor.

It is expected that Luke Kelley, former Holy Cross line coach, will take over the reins next fall.

Kelley appears to be the logical man, providing he will accept the job. He has had several years of experience at Holy Cross and is acquainted with the Boston University situation, as he has helped Mahaney at times.

Alumni Demand Mahaney's Release

A dissatisfied alumni group started demanding Mahaney's release as soon as the season was over. A petition was sent to the athletic council asking that the coach be removed. This year's lettermen, however, were behind Mahaney to a man.

At a meeting of the lettermen held two days ago, a petition was drawn up and signed by the twenty-two members present asking that Mahaney and Marsters be retained next fall.

It seems, however, as though the alumni agitation is too great to be checked.

Mahaney has been connected with the Boston University coaching staff since he was graduated from Holy Cross in 1925. Immediately after his graduation he was offered a coaching job as assistant to "Doc" Whelan, then head coach at B. U.

FORE RIVER TO MEET WOBURN

The league leading Fore River soccer team will take on the Woburn Civic eleven at Fore River Field, Quincy, tomorrow, in a feature week-end contest in this section.

In the last game between the elevens, the Shipbuilders copped full points, winning 2 to 0, with Bobby Blair notching both counters.

The Woburn team expects to do better tomorrow for its new Irish stars, Mike McDonough and John O'Brien, will be included in the line-up as well as Paddy Wallace and Tommy Adams.

With this quartet displaying the brand of soccer which they are capable of, the Shipbuilders will find the going hard.

Today's feature game takes place at Worcester, where the Morgans of that city entertain the Victoria Mills eleven of Thornton, R. I.

In the American League two first class attractions are offered New England fans, the Providence and Pawtucket elevens battling at Pawtucket and the Whalers and Giants fighting it out at New Bedford.

New York, Dec. 20—Jim Londos, recognized in some states as world heavyweight wrestling champion, will defend his title against Ferenc Holuban, Magyar grappler, at Madison Square Garden on December 29, it was announced by Promoter Jack Curley.

Holuban climaxed a long string of victories last Monday by throwing Wladek Zbyszko, former champion, in seven minutes.

LERMOND MUST BE UNATTACHED

It was announced today by J. Frank Facey, chairman of the registration committee of the N. E. A. A. U., that Leo Lermond of Nahant, famous middle-distance runner, will be unable to represent the Boston A. A. until Feb. 28, and must run unattached until that date.

Lermond transferred his amateur athletic registration to the Southern Pacific Association last spring. He returned to the East after competing at the national title games in Pittsburgh in August.

His transfer of registration back to the New England district was sent him at his request. This transfer was dated Oct. 15. Facey did not receive the transfer until Oct. 28, and according to A. A. U. ruling, four months must elapse after that date before Lermond will be eligible to represent the B. A. A., or any club in this district.

Six More Robins Sign Up for 1931

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—A half dozen more Brooklyn Robins have signed on the dotted line, the club announced today. Signed contracts have been received from pitchers Ray Moss and V. Mungo; infielders Eddie Moore, Bob Reis and Neal Finn, and outfielder Bob Parham. Of these, Parham, Reis and Mungo are recruits, the others veterans.

ALL-EAST TEAM PICKED TO WIN

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 20 (INS)—With the the arrival of the East team, the cast is complete for the annual East-West Shrine charity football game here on Dec. 27.

The men who will represent the West in the annual classic got into town yesterday, with the exception of two, and were dined, feted and sent through a hard workout.

Coaches Dana S. Bible, Nebraska, and Percy Locey, San Francisco Olympic Club, announced they were highly pleased with the spirit, punch and ability displayed by the gridders from the West of the Mississippi, especially the kicking and passing of Jarring Jim Bausch of Kansas; the snappy signal calling and open field dashes of little 145-pound Jake Wilson, Baylor University, and the all-around class of the two first-string guards, Beckett, California, and Koch, Baylor, who, today are real all-Americans.

Colbert and Christensen, guard and tackle, respectively, from Oregon, reported today.

Andy Kerr, Colgate, and Dick Hanley, Northwestern, pulled into town with the eastern aggregation which, because of its size and reputation was immediately established favorite to win.

Such stars as Baker, end, Northwestern; Van Bibber, tackle, Purdue; Linehan, guard, Yale; Siano, center, Fordham; Bruder, halfback, Northwestern, and Macaluso, fullback, Colgate, didn't stir up much enthusiasm in the breasts of the Westerners.

SCHOOLBOY TRACK STARS ACTIVE

By BILL CONNELL

Schoolboy track and field competitors have finished their preliminary workouts and next week will open intensive training for the indoor season which starts in two weeks.

Some of the stars of a year ago are back and the new speedsters, just pushing to the fore, will force the headliners and should make the coming season one of the best of recent years in Greater Boston.

Bill Connell

Track and field have taken long steps forward in school ranks in the past few seasons. Malden, Somerville, Everett and other big schools have taken up the sport and their teams have surged toward the top to make the going tougher than ever for the leaders.

Two of the best school performers who will enter the lists this winter are Tony Geniawicz of Lynn English and Jim Colligen of Newton in the 12-pound shot. Both boys can shove the ball better than 52 feet, so records in this event are in danger.

Dash Records in Danger

Art Jannell of Lynn English and Holmes of Newton will be after dash titles. Jannell has a bit of advantage on the Newton flash because the latter does not get in much practice while Jannell trains regularly. Holmes will be sufficiently fast to push Jannell and the other speed kings so that record figures in the dash are likely to be lowered before the season ends.

The boys named are only a few of the number of fine school athletes who will compete this year. All are training now and in a week or so should show just how well they will be able to perform in the dual and intercollegiate meetings of the year.

The fighting for points should be the best of the recent seasons and consequently the fans have some fine school track entertainment in store.

Arlington High Has Strong Sextet

Arlington high should be up near the top of the Suburban Ice Hockey League this winter. Capt. Ray Thomas and seven other veterans are with the Arlington squad. The team is figured to push and perhaps defeat Melrose for the title.

Quinn Outbid Millionaire Indian Owner for Ruel

By JOE CASHMAN

Bob Quinn's refusal to ever make public the salaries he pays to or the prices he pays for his ball players has caused a widespread impression that the Red Sox "prexy" hasn't as much money as most of his fellow magnates and that he is constantly being outbid for the services of good material.

We don't know the size of Quinn's bankroll or whether he has ever failed to get a player he wanted because he lacked the cash.

Joe Cashman

We do know, though, that on occasions he has outbid the other fellow and secured what he wanted.

He did that no later than last Monday when he purchased Harold 'Muddy' Ruel, veteran catcher, from the Washington Senators.

Bob didn't say what he paid for the receiver and never even hinted that he had to make a better offer than a rival magnate to get him, but this is admitted in Cleveland.

Indians Wanted to Get Ruel

The Indians wanted Ruel and wanted him badly. Manager Roger Peckinpaugh will take a small army of promising rookie hurlers south next spring and a smart, experienced catcher like Ruel would prove invaluable to him in handling these kids.

Yet, Quinn outbid Alva Bradley, multi-millionaire owner of the Cleveland franchise, for Ruel, so he must have paid plenty.

Cleveland critics can't understand the deal, at all. They insist that the Indians need Ruel much more than the Sox and should have been allowed to get him.

There's a new argument for you.

They further say that the next move in the deal should be the sending of Ruel to Cleveland by Quinn for a few players Peck can get along without.

There are several players on the Cleveland club, they insist, who would be of more help to the Sox than Ruel, and Quinn should take advantage of this opportunity to strengthen his outfit.

Quinn, no doubt, would trade Ruel to Cleveland or any other club if he thought he could strengthen the Sox by doing it, but if the Indian management wouldn't outbid him for Ruel's services, it doesn't seem likely that it would be willing to give him players worth as much to the natives as the catcher figures to be be next season.

What probably happened in this deal was that Cleveland figured that any offer it made would be better than any the Red Sox could possibly make and before it realized its mistake, Ruel was on his way to Boston.

Offered McCarthy More Than Yanks

And you can bet that that wasn't the first time Quinn offered more than a rival for somebody he wanted.

He offered to give Joe McCarthy more money than the Yanks would when he sought that former Cub pilot to manage the Sox next season.

Just because he doesn't let the world in on his business is no indication that he is running his club on a shoe string.

He is plenty able to hold his own in any baseball auction, and he gets most of the players he goes after.

That he hasn't been successful in building up a winning club is not because he hasn't spent enough money but because he hasn't, as yet, been lucky enough to get his money's worth.

But he isn't discouraged. He is just as determined to put the Hub back on the baseball map today as when he first came here seven years back.

NEIGHBOR ASKS AID FOR EIGHT CHILDREN

A family of eight children in a Boston suburb are unable to attend church due to the lack of shoes and clothing.

A neighbor has written to the Helping Hand Department of the Boston Evening American that the destitute family has refrained from asking help of anyone even though the oldest, a boy of 19, is sick in bed.

The children range in ages from 10 to 19 years. Each one is in urgent need of warm clothing. Anyone wishing to help them can obtain the address by calling the Helping Hand Department at Liberty 4000 and referring to Case 139.

I am writing to ask you if you can help a very needy family who have had hard luck for years due to sickness and death. There are eight children in the family and they cannot got to church on Sunday for the want of clothes. The mother has a hard time to make ends meet. They had no Thanksgiving dinner and I know they won't have one for Christmas unless your good work will help them. Any kind of clothes will be greatly appreciated.

MOTHER ASKS AID
(Refer to Case 140)

I am the mother of seven little children ranging from the ages of nine years to seven months' old and for their sake and happiness I am appealing to you for aid.

We are badly in need of everything, especially food, clothing and shoes. My husband is loafing for three months, and he tries every day to find some work and it's all in vain. I have four little ones that go to school—two at home and one in the hospital. Soon I will be forced to keep them home from school as I have no money to buy them shoes and clothing.

WIDOW ASKS AID
(Refer to Case 141)

I am writing to you to find out if you could give me a Christmas basket. I am a poor widow. I lost my husband three years ago. I am 65 years old. I have tried everywhere to get some work, but nobody wants you when you get old. I will have a very poor and lonely Christmas unless you can help me as I have no money or friends. So if you can send me a basket, God will bless you and I will thank you.

GIRL WANTS BASKET
(Refer to Case 142)

I am writing to you to tell you that I would like a Christmas basket. My father does not work. Please send it to me. We are 14 in the family; if you do not believe me come over and see. Please send clothes and do not forget me. I will be waiting for you. Please do not forget.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

If, as have pointed out, equalized hand pressure in the swing implies that the left hand's job is to hang onto the shaft and the work of the right hand is to hit, how is that to be brought about? The answer is, it brings itself about. This is the crux of the whole thing, and it is sometimes your own effort to make your hands do exactly what they would do of themselves if you allowed them to, that causes some of your golfing troubles. I am convinced that the best practice is to let your hands work as involuntary muscles, which means, of course, that the wrists work the same way. Hands and wrists in these discussions are one and the same thing. Your right hand will come right back where it belongs involuntarily left to itself, but if you try to make it hit you get into trouble. The swing therefore, begins with a firm left hand grip and a light right-hand hold. Thereafter, leave your right hand alone.

HARD TIMES TO DRIVE MEN TO GOD

The Rev. Vaughan Dabney of the Second Church, Dorchester, preached his tenth anniversary sermon this past week, taking for his theme:

"We Are on the Verge of a Religious Revival."

Dr. Dabney declared:

"A revival not of an artificial, transitory and sectarian emotionalism, but of a comprehensive religious faith that will stir the mind, heart and will. This coming era of faith will be brought about by the turning of science from a mechanistic to a spiritual interpretation of the universe by statesmen who see that only religion can save the world, and by ardent church leaders and the younger generation. The speaker said that no one knew what form this revival would take, but it should result in bringing the various creeds into a closer understanding. Public worship and private prayer will be revived and a fresh era of social service will emerge.

"The past 10 years might be called the decade of descent from the peak of war emotionalism to the valley of doubt and disillusionment. The next decade may be thought of as a decade of ascent to the higher ideals of sacrifice and love. Men are becoming wearied by things, and are turning from excitement and pleasure to seek the vital air of faith. Hard times will drive us to God."

Dr. Dabney is the president of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches, as well as minister of the Second Church, Dorchester.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Mackerel scarcity on the fishing grounds has caused the netting fleet that bring the surface water fish into the Boston Fish Pier to abandon hopes and turn their attentions to bottom or ground fishing.

Mackerel netters report that recent weather has brought about almost the elimination of mackerel on the grounds.

Improved weather conditions were apparent, however, in the increased receipts of ground fish which were seen in the returns of 21 vessels that reported, yesterday.

WEATHER DELAY

Delay caused by adverse weather was reported in a wireless from the S. S. Merican, Leyland Line, due here from Liverpool and Manchester, which will arrive tonight. The message reached the International Mercantile Marine Co.

PROPELLER BENT

Flanges of the propeller of the M. S. Primero, Norwegian, were found to be twisted as if they had collided with some submerged obstruction when she was lifted into the floating drydock of the Simpson plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp. at East Boston. She arrived here a few days ago from British Columbian ports, unloading lumber at the Wiggin terminal, Charlestown. The tail shaft will be drawn for inspection.

BERMUDA BOUND

Bostonians booked to sail on the M. S. Bermuda, Furness-Bermuda line, are Mrs. James J. Storrow, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Howie and Joyce Walton, who will be her house guests at the Mid-Ocean Club, Polly Beale, popular post debutante; Frederick Winsor, principal of Middlesex School for Boys, Concord, with Mrs. Winsor; Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. White and Mary E. Phinney were other Bostonians booked.

WARMER CLIME

Christmas in Haiti and New Year's in Havana is the schedule arranged for a 16-day West Indies cruise on the new S. S. Lafayette, French Line, which leaves today. Three Boston passengers due to sail are Lincoln Stoddard, Chapin Riley and Fred Simmons.

"SHOWBOAT" RESALE

Second auction sale of the vessel Showboat, which once was used as a "floating night club," will be held today. The United States District Court failed to confirm a sale to Maxwell Harris, shipbroker, for $1345. Showboat was the former schooner Cora F. Cressey. It has a 2500 square feet dance floor, 250 feet promenade deck and a dining room which seats 600.

Wonders, Strange and True

Nudity Is Ugly, Our Earth and Race Must Die

BACK TO NATURE

A SHAMAN PRIEST, DEVIL FIGHTER

The pictures above illustrate the strangeness of human thought. On the left is a German gentleman who believes in "going back to nature," says the human form is divine and should not be concealed.

We disagree with him, in his case at least, emphatically.

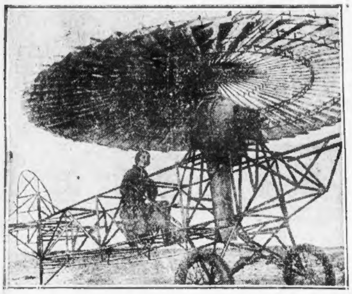
A complete set of overalls would improve him considerably.

On the right is a Shaman priest, whose belief in witchcraft, devils, etc., directs the religious thought of tribes in cold Siberia.

To make room in this short column we had to cut this distinguished gentleman off short. Bells ring when he dances. He has hen's feathers fastened around his waist and wears a hideous mask.

He says to his deluded believers: "The air around you is full of devils, evil spirits, seeking to drag you down. But leave all to me; I know how to frighten them."

They believe and pay, and the gentleman with bells and chicken feathers lives in comfort.



TO SOLVE FLYING—MAYBE

Consider also what is said to be the latest thing in flying machines built helicopter fashion. Revolving blades above the girl pilot lift the machine straight up from the earth and allow it to come straight down. With such a machine you could land on the roof of an office building and, after work, come safely down in your own front yard.

When the lady wants the machine to go forward she tilts the revolving blades forward, so that they look like an umbrella held in front of her.

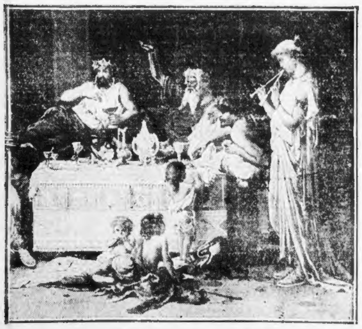
Study carefully the picture of the great Lucullus trying to enjoy the fruits of his victory.

You see him in his magnificent palace in Rome, with finest wines, the finest fruits and delicacies of all kinds. A beautiful maiden plays on a queer double flute for his entertainment.



LUCULLUS, CONQUEROR OF ASIA, HE CAUSED CAESAR TO GO TO GAUL

Behind him a philosopher from Greece, now conquered and servile, spouts philosophy, which is rather empty when a nation has lost its liberty.

This Lucullus, whom we all remember as a self-indulgent "high liver," was perhaps, with one exception, the greatest general of ancient times. His conquests in Asia filled Caesar with

Listen, World! -:- Youth

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Young Generation Must Be Served

THE YOUNGSTERS were pouring out of the stadium as I came down the hill. Football game between the two biggest high schools. Thousands of boys and girls on foot and in cars—laughing, shrieking, pummeling each other, crazy with excitement.

Elsie Robinson

Splendid kids! A great sight! The road was jammed with them, and they refused to move for the traffic that piled up on either side, on the main highway. So the grinning cops gave them the right of way, motioning the rest of us into a detour that meant a circle of four blocks before we could hit the boulevard again.

Patiently, good naturedly, we adults turned aside. Trucks, laundry and delivery wagons, private cars, off the highway we turned, adding long blocks and minutes to our crowded schedules without a protest. And, with never a though of the inconvenience they had caused, the youngsters pre-empted that boulevard for the next half-hour.

They didn't even notice that the rest of us had to detour—that only kid cars were free to pass. Why should they? This was a regular occurrence. It happened two or three times a week during the football season. They expected it to happen. They would have been astonished and outraged if it hadn't happened. For, since they could remember, YOUTH HAD THE RIGHT OF WAY.

"YOUTH MUST BE SERVED" runs the old proverb. Youth must be served that the next generation may be wiser, braver, more powerful. That's right. And we Americans have accepted that policy enthusiastically. We're putting in a 24-hour day serving our Youth. But aren't we carrying such service to dangerous extremes?

Should Mother make her old coat do a third season so young Bessie may have that new fur jacquette?

Should Dad put another plaster on the home so that young Sam can belong to a college fraternity?

Do such sacrifices really serve Youth—or do they give it a distorted sense of its own importance—do they increase its silliness and selfishness and arrogance?

And if you make Youth feel it's the Whole Show . . .

If you let it run hog wild, without restraint or training . . .

If you turn it loose into life as ignorant as a savage of civilized relationship . . .

When then?

Is that SERVING Youth or is it CRIPPLING Youth?

Serve Youth that Youth may, in its turn, know the pride and joy of service.

Serve Youth that way, and Youth will repay your service. But let Youth run hog wild and some day it will turn on you and curse you for keeping it a weakling. And you'll deserve the curses!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

One Must Simper at Afternoon Teas

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—All I've ever been able to do at an afternoon tea is squat in an obscure corner and look grinnier than usual. While others are cooing and twittering I watch for a neat opening to take it on the lam. I despise teas, but now and then one has to go.

Yesterday provided one of the unhappy afternoons. Long ago I realized to be a card at such carryings-on one must simper. So all morning I practiced simpering before a mirror, revamped a few Oscar Wilde mots and brushed up holding a teacup archly with the little finger skyward.

One particular smirk I worked up into something that seemed to me perfectly dandy. It was, if you know what I mean, distingue. Few would grasp its significance at a glance. Only a twitch to the right eyebrow—only a twitch, but it would get you, girls!

Irvin Cobb, who is turning out a novel two floors above, dropped in during rehearsals. He has attempted some single-handed tea smirking in his time so I sought his critical opinion. He was politely attentive and when I smirked my favorite I inquired: "Isn't it a beaut?"

* * *

Right off I spotted a shade of jealousy. Nothing on the surface, you understand, but deep underneath a hesitancy.

In fact, I offered then and there to give him two smirks advantage and smirk him three sets, winner take all.

A grimace, indeed! Grimacers will always throw cold water on the efforts of a finished smirker. Failing to out-smirk, they resort to jeering. Also, if I cared to be nasty, there was a 50-cent gift cigar on my desk that disappeared when Mr. Cobb left.

* * *

Anyway, as is my wont, I arrived at the tea early. When I zinged the front bell two hired butlers in monkey coats were turning in the servant entrance. And why does a hostess meet a tea guest as though he might be an interloper? I go early because I don't care for cakes and truffles after they are mussed over. I like to start at scratch and nibbled the icing and goo-goos off a dozen small cakes, dropping the insides behind divan, before a half dozen people came.

* * *

It is fascinating to watch a swarm of tea hounds suddenly pair off into little football huddles. A slight murmurous buzz swells into an incoherent roar. I horned into the most notable group, muffling my face before my hand to rehearse my smirk at intervals.

* * *

Tea drinkers are namby-pamby talkers. After the first cocktail, one gentleman insisted Marilyn Miller ran away with her show, "Smiles," on opening night, but after the fourth admitted he was in Syracuse. A bereted flapper talking from her boots, a la Garbo, revealed a choice bit of salacious scandal in the movies, and a wrist-tapping cigaretist, speaking familiarly of J. P. Morgan as "Jack," told how stocks would presently skyrocket as never before. And so on.

It went like this for some time with no opportunity to present my smirk. Further delay was caused by a squiffy fellow suddenly overcome by a notion I was angry with him. I'll admit I was never passionately enamored but I held no particular grievance. I did not even object to him leaning all his weight on a shoulder and blatting: "Whuz I ever do t'you?"

* * *

At length through some happy inspiration my group turned to the subject of newspaper columns, which is right up my pet alley, and I could feel my pet smirk struggling for expression. Someone turned to me for an opinion. I waited for full attention and let go my smirk with a bang. Once you release a smirk, you can't pull it back, so I know how Casey felt after his memorable strike-out. The smirk was a complete dud. And then it came over me all of a sudden the trouble. Everybody was cockeyed. Just another one of these teas and not a cup of tea in the place! For sale: One smirk—slightly tarnished.

Clark's Fine Thoughts

Massachusetts Applauds Judge's Social Theories

Whatever the legal merits or deficiencies of Judge William Clark's decision against the prohibition amendment, the people of Massachusetts must derive immense satisfaction from his fine social philosophy, his independence and his eminent frankness.

Judge Clark is a product of Harvard College and it was in this State that he absorbed the theory of political liberality and observed the liberal workings of government institutions.

It is to be noted that Judge Clark upheld the inherent rights of the people to order their constitutional changes. It will be noted, too, his observation that constitutional conventions elected upon a small number of important issues give to the public a more responsively democratic service than a Legislature or a Congress, the members of which hide their weaknesses and duplicity under the volume of issues and programs that are put forward at the time of their quest of re-election.

Judge Clark no doubt had in mind the last Constitutional Convention of Massachusetts, which gave to this State the Initiative and Referendum and eighteen other amendments, all of them adopted by vote of the people. This is just the system which Judge Clark says should have prevailed in the matter of prohibition.

The New Jersey judge did not hesitate, in the spirit of independence too frequently non-existent among our jurists and lawmakers, to remind the Supreme Court of the United States that its own record is far from consistent.

And we will note further in his decision that he quoted liberally and affectionately from those two fine, liberal and progressive Massachusetts jurists, Holmes and Brandeis, without whom the national court might possibly have snapped away the few remaining rights left to the public.

Too Many Servants

They Run the Household

It is odd to hear a warning against engineering from an engineer. Yet a sharp warning is sounded by a noted member of the engineering profession, John Van Nostrand Dorr, a former associate of Thomas A. Edison.

Mr. Dorr tells the United States that "indiscriminate invention" and the dizzy production of new machines is one of the chief dangers faced by mankind today.

> "We eventually become lost in the multiplicity of things," he says, "unless we do more than invent machines or processes. In saying this I may seem at odds with my profession, but I cannot believe only in the endless production of more and more material things. Unless this production-mad nation develops a higher civilization, it is bound to be enslaved by its own machinery."

Which is an interesting thought. We hear much about the labor-saving devices that are to benefit everybody, but we note that these same devices throw many men out of work and make life extremely complicated even for those that have work.

The United States has tried to make machines its servants, but finds that the servants are running the household, and not running it smoothly. And with singular logic, we are told by most of our wise men that the only remedy is more servants.

Population Tripled

In the Alcoholic Wards

Another triumph for prohibition—if you want to call it that—is recorded in the annual report of Dr. J. G. Greeff, Commissioner of Hospitals in New York City.

The number of alcoholic cases admitted to the city hospitals has tripled in the last nine years.

In 1920 the number of alcoholic cases in these hospitals was 2091. In 1929 it was 7066.

In 1920 there were 449 women alcoholics. In 1929 there were 1071.

In fairness to prohibitionists, let us admit that New York has grown somewhat in the last nine years, and hence there was bound to be an increase in its alcoholics, as in the rest of the population.

New York, however, has not tripled its inhabitants. Only the beds in the alcoholic wards, and their occupants—that's all.

Wonders, Strange and True

jealous ambition, so that he went conquering in Gaul to eclipse Lucullus.

You learn from this picture that there is no real happiness except in action.

Lucullus had a Greek slave girl—Ferrero tells about her—who probably had more real joy than Lucullus ever had. For, conquering the conqueror, she made him go through Greece, her native land, and restore cities and temples that had been destroyed.

These words and pictures are an adumbration of tomorrow's intensely interesting edition of the AMERICAN WEEKLY, which you receive with your BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER.

It is a compendium of science, of the world's strange things, illustrated in large, full-page pictures and accurately told.

You will be especially interested in the great scientist Thevenin's continuation of his series as to what men might have been under a different evolution, and what they will be eventually, headed in their present direction.

From him you learn that this earth and the men on it must die.

And also, rather bad news, when all the other animals except man shall have disappeared the microbes will still be with us.

They were the first things alive on the earth, and they will be alive here when men shall have vanished, killed by intense cold, the microbes probably helping the cold.

To read the scientific articles in the AMERICAN WEEKLY each week is an education.

Interesting facts are presented so strikingly that you MUST be interested in them.
